Dallas Road Waterfront 'Great White Way' On Windy Day

Arena To Have New Engineer

Technician Will Inspect Machines Throughout Year

By RONALD BAIRD

A first-class refrigeration technician who "really knows his business" has been retained by the Memorial Arena Commission.

The appointment is expected to cure nearly four years of ice-making headaches at the civic trouble spot.

Commission chairman J. Carl Pendray said today Dick Reith, former technician with the Canadian Ice Machine Co., has been in the city for the past week and is now working in a supervisory capacity at the arena.

His appointment makes one of the suggested steps made public in a report by consulting engineers Swan, Rhodes and Wooster.

The Arena Commission has been assured that Reith will keep a close eye on the ice-making equipment year-round employed by the commission in the winter and on call in the summer as a resident representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Co. in the city.

Both Mr. Pendray and arena manager Joe Dukowski expressed assurance that Mr. Reith's appointment will put an end to arena ice-making troubles.

Report No Surprise To Pendray

The arena report, with its conclusion that about $56,000 will put the arena in good shape, came as no shock to Commission Chairman Pendray or Arena Manager Dukowski. Both men said it carried recommendations that they themselves had felt were needed.

In the matter of appointing a competent refrigeration engineer, Dukowski felt that the only mistake made was in not having had one from the beginning.

"Previous engineers have never had enough experience," said Pendray. He was echoed by the arena manager who—no refrigeration expert himself—agreed that even he was able to see that lack of a competent supervisor caused the trouble.

Dukowski felt that the report could have been a bit stronger. He plans to present additional recommendations of his own soon.

Pendray said that rumors and verbal reports of arena difficulties have now been clarified by the engineer's report, and that the airing of the situation in black and white should put an end to past troubles.

"Verbal reports have never been accurate before," he said.

Assurance of complete co-operation by the city council has been given with the city manager in the position of liaison man between commission and council.

Both Dukowski and Pendray feel satisfied with the operation of temporary ice-making coils supplied by Yarrow's Ltd. engineers but the $13,000 bill for the coils came as a "shock" to Pendray.

Pendray said the arena commission will face the $56,000 repair bill by making the most needed alterations as soon as possible and doing the entire job over an extended period of time.

B.C. Coast Storms Take Three Lives

Beach-Combers, Fisherman Lost

Storms which have been lashing British Columbia coasts for the past three days may have claimed three or more lives, R.C.M.P. reports filtering in from remote spots indicated today.

Body of George MacDonald, 34, beach comber, of Mitchell Island, was washed ashore at Donegal Head, Malcolm Island, near Alert Bay, R.C.M.P. at Alert Bay disclosed. Police are now searching for the body of MacDonald's companion, Barry Belveal, also of Mitchell Island.

Third victim of the storm is believed to be Satoshi Araki, 30, of Vancouver, whose shrimp boat was found drifting Sunday off the mouth of the Fraser River. No trace of Araki has been found.

Police said MacDonald and Belveal had been out hunting logs in their small craft. MacDonald's body was found near the wreckage of a dinghy and small gillnetter.

Meanwhile, authorities reported three persons aboard a missing gillnetter, the North Sea, which left Port Alberni Saturday, are known to be safe.

The North Sea, with Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy and Tommy Myers, all of Port Alberni, aboard, was storm-bound along the Alberni Canal, it was announced.

Eight persons were rescued in the collision of two fishboats near Thetis Island during the week-end. In collision were the seiner Winnifred, owned by Samuel Fleck, and the gillnetter "R." Among those rescued were Mrs. Elmer Elex and her 11-month-old child of Galiano Island, who along with others were tossed into the sea.

ROYAL THEATRE, BUT NOT ARENA, HARRISON'S AIM

Claude Harrison, mayoralty candidate, has written City Council, asking that instead of sponsoring an open meeting for all candidates in a school, as is planned, that it arrange a meeting in the Royal Theatre.

Mr. Harrison stated in his letter that there was great interest in the forthcoming election and that he believed a large building would be needed.

Mr. Harrison added: "I think it would be preferable not to hold such a meeting in the Memorial Arena."

Mr. Harrison, in his campaigning, has issued personal doubts about the arena being safe.

Lauds Valiant Men As Talks Continue

General Commends Begrimed Heroes

WESTERN FRONT, KOREA, Nov. 27 (UP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet forwarded his congratulations today to the begrimed heroes of "Little Gibraltar" for thrashing the Reds in what may have been the final slugging match of the Korean war.

A single company of United Nations' infantrymen clung to the strategic hill in a vicious, 26-hour battle against what Allied officers called an entire Chinese army—equal to a U.N. corps.

BAYONETS, FISTS

The contest of bullets, bayonets and even fists took place almost within sight of Panmunjom, where truce negotiations ratified a tentative cease-fire line today.

Thus, "Little Gibraltar" will remain in allied hands if the negotiators agree on the rest of the agenda within 30 days.

(Over the week-end it has been known through the dispatches of Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent sent to cover the Canadian forces in Korea, that Canada's famed Van Doos were fighting for their lives along the west sector. However today's dispatches make no new mention of the Canadians. At latest releases, however, the west sector where the action is currently taking place, is the Canadians' sector.)

NO EXPERIENCE

A remarkable feature of the Allied triumph was that more than half the company went into the slugfest Sunday with no previous battle experience. Furthermore, the firing was so intense that at one point, the men had only one box of .30 calibre machinegun ammunition and three bandoliers of bullets left on the hill.

"Every man up there was a hero," the company commander said.

He spoke as his men were pulled out of the line for rest and re-equipping.

The men didn't discuss their victory in such grandiose terms.

"When I heard those Chinese bugles," one said, "I thought it might be St. Peter."

Another said simply: "There was a lot of praying and a lot of fighting."

Until fresh ammunition arrived on the hill, the Allies fought with rifle butts, fists, bayonets and anything else handy. They slugged it out toe-to-toe on the crest of the two-pronged mountain.

During the worst six hours, the U.N. soldiers skidded down the mountain side several yards to escape Red artillery shells pounding the crest. When the artillery halted, they ran back up to meet a new wave of attacking Communists.

The division commander said: "It was a beautiful piece of work." He told his staff officers the battle served as "an inspiration to serve better those who did that for us."

TROOPS WOULD BAN FIGHTING DURING TALKS

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Nov. 27 (UP). — American frontline troops feel that the shooting in Korea should halt immediately or subside by unspoken agreement while the truce talks continue.

But they're still willing to attack if their commanders will name an objective that will end the war by defeating the enemy.

That's the typical opinion expressed in troop "bull sessions" over the last two weeks. It shows a definite change in G.I. opinion since the armistice talks began in July. At that time the soldiers were suspicious of the Communist motives and expected the talks to end with a Red assault.

"We are not sweating out a cease-fire," said Sgt. James Shore, 21, of Silver Hill, Ala. "We want to get the hell out of Korea but we don't expect any armistice to do it. But if they're going to stop the shooting they should do it right now, while I'm still alive."

Cpl. Joseph J. Costa, 26, of Honolulu, Hawaii, said: "We could have licked the Chinks. We had them on the ropes weeks ago when we busted through their winter line. We should have kept on going, talks or no talks. I'm not so sure now. They're dug in deeper than ever."

Pfc. Thomas Hess, 21, Columbus, O., expressed his views as follows: "We'd go after them right now, though, if they told us to go all the way but they've practically told us we're never going all the way in Korea again. What are we doing here?"

Pte. Jack A. Bower, 24, of Hubbard, Ore.: "I know we could lick 'em if they put enough stuff in her to do it. Seems to me that's the way to win a war. Thirty more days? What for? If they don't want to sign anything over there in Panmunjom why just let the shooting fade away until we decide what we're going to do — we'd all go for that. You know, let the shooting fade away and us old soldiers will never die."

'Inspection' Now Truce Talk Point

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 27 (AP)—Truce negotiators signed an agreement on a Korean cease-fire line today—and immediately came up with widely different ideas on how to put a cease-fire into effect.

United Nations delegates presented a seven-point plan for supervising an armistice. It included provision for joint Allied-Communist inspection teams with "free access to all parts of Korea."

The Communists did not mention either inspection teams or supervision behind enemy lines in a five-point plan they submitted. They have consistently refused to let outsiders enter Red Korea.

"The session was short and sweet," said Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate.

"We started the ball rolling by telling the Communists their proposal wasn't broad enough on the general principles (for supervision). Then we gave them an idea of what we wanted."

The Communists asked for an adjournment until 11 a.m. Wednesday (9 p.m. EST Tuesday) to study the U.N. plan.

The conference, set in a Christmas-like landscape in the snow of Panmunjom, opened with a series of agreements on a provisional cease-fire line—first by the staff officers who drew the line on a 14-foot map, then by sub-committees which had argued over a buffer zone for more than three months, and finally by the full truce delegations.

APPROVE ZONE

The truce teams also approved a buffer-zone agreement, making the line the cease-fire line if a full agreement is signed within 30 days.

The agreement does not halt the fighting. Agreement first must be reached on three other clauses—supervision of the armistice, exchange of prisoners and recommendations to governments.

Admiral Joy sought to speed settlement of the remaining points by proposing that each side begin compiling necessary data now on the exchange of prisoners.

DROP INVESTIGATION INTO COSTS, PROFIT MARGINS

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (CP).—Parliament's special committee on resale price maintenance today voted 21 to 9 to reverse a decision taken Monday to investigate manufacturing costs and margins of profit on consumer goods that are price maintained and those which are not.

Committee chairman James Sinclair (L.-Vancouver North) brought the issue to a head when he stated that the 10-man steering committee had discussed the decision in private late Monday and decided it is not feasible to make the investigation.

E. D. Fulton (P.C.-Kamloops) charged that the government has made the committee only an "adding machine" and a "rubber stamp."

Donald Fleming (P.C.-Toronto Eglington) said the committee has become a "hollow farce."

CZECH HATCHETMAN HELD FOR TREASON

Moscow-Trained Rudolf Slansky Loses Post As Vice-President; Arrested By Communists

LONDON, Nov. 27 (AP).—Moscow-trained Rudolf Slansky, one-time hatchetman of Czechoslovak Communism, has been fired as vice-premier and arrested for "activities against the state," Prague radio announced today.

The arrest was ordered by Communist President Klement Gottwald at the suggestion of Premier Antonin Zapotocky, the announcement said. It said "investigations into activities of subversive groups" brought out facts that convict Slansky.

Slansky was removed from his job as secretary-general of the Czechoslovak Communist party last September in a move tied by Western observers to Moscow orders to the Czech Communists to tighten their ranks against inroads of "Titoism."

The announcement at the time said Slansky would get "another important state post," but did not say what it was to be.

The Czech government shake-up was believed to have been linked with growing unrest in Czechoslovakia at the rising demands of the ruling Communists for greater production. Demands on the Czech economy created critical shortages and passive resistance among some workers.

An undeground source reported from Czechoslovakia last month that the Slansky ouster came because the Oatis case backfired. The Czech Communists imprisoned and convicted A.P. correspondent William N. Oatis as a "spy," sentencing him to 10 years. The trial was denounced throughout the non-Communist world.

"In the course of recent investigations into activities of subversive groups previously unknown facts have come to light which convict Slansky of activities against the state. As a result he has been placed in custody."

Sidney Woman Strong-Armed By Masked Man

A Sidney woman was brutally strong-armed by a masked man and robbed of $70 in her home Monday night.

Victim was Mrs. Felix Ohberg, 43, of 4th and Basen, who suffered bruises and shock from the vicious way the men twisted her arms in propelling her about in search for money, R.C.M.P. reported.

It was the second major crime in 24 hours in the district. Sunday night a gang made off with a safe from the Sidney Cash and Carry store containing $2,000 in cash, cheques and a bond. The safe has not been recovered.

HOME ALONE

Mrs. Ohberg was home alone. Her husband was at the village movie house. The stranger suddenly came through the rear door at 9.15 with his head completely shrouded in a black stocking.

He immediately grabbed the terrified Mrs. Ohberg and snapped:

"I want some money!"

"I have none," she managed to reply.

"I know you have money," replied the intruder and, maintaining a vice-like hold on her arm, pushed her around until he located a purse. From this the masked man extracted $20 and then pushed her into the bedroom and rifled through dresser drawers and got $50 more.

BIG MAN

The robber then let Mrs. Ohberg go and hurriedly left by the door he had entered.

Mrs. Ohberg notified the R.C.M.P. through a neighbor.

The victim has recently returned from a long convalescent visit to Alberta. She was unable to tell police more about her assailant other than he was about six feet tall and wore a parka.

Contrary to earlier reports, the strong-arm man did not display a gun, or other weapon, Mrs. Ohberg told police.

Labor Congress Wants Price Control Board

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (CP).—The 500,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today urged the government to create a consumers' price control board "to free the whole economy from restrictive price practices."

Percy Bengough, T.L.C. president, said in a 5,000-word submission to Parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing that the government's proposal to amend combines laws to make resale price maintenace illegal is a "negative" way to deal with price restriction problems.

The consumers' price control board would be a "positive" way of dealing with the problem.

More Papers Boost Prices

SPOKANE, Nov. 27 (UP).—Both Spokane dailies, the Spokesman-Review and the Chronicle, have increased in price from 5 to 7 cents daily. At the same time, weekly subscriptions have gone from 30 to 35 cents. Rising costs of labor and materials have necessitated the increase a spokesman said.

A prediction that "the 5-cent newspaper will inevitably go the way of the 5-cent cigar" was made this week in Los Angeles, where papers recently increased to 10 cents a copy. San Diego and Eureka Newspapers Inc. recently increased to a dime.

Monthly rate for the Los Angeles Times and Examiner is now $2.25.

British Disclose Meyer Given Week's Vacation

BONN, Germany, Nov. 27 (AP)—Former German Gen. Kurt Meyer has had a week's vacation from a British war crimes prison to visit his wife and six children, British sources disclosed here today.

Meyer returned last Thursday to his cell in the Werl war crimes prison, near Hamm in the British zone of Germany.

The sources said he was allowed out on compassionate grounds because he had not seen his family since the war. The prisoners in Werl are confined under conditions laid down in the German penal code, which allows such compassionate releases.

(Douglas How, Canadian Press staff writer, said in a dispatch from Offleben, Germany, that he had seen Meyer at his home Sunday. How quoted Meyer as saying he would return to prison Saturday.)

The swarthy, tough brigade commander of an S.S. armored division was sentenced to death by a Canadian military court in 1945 for responsibility for the shooting of 18 Canadian prisoners captured at Caen, Normandy.

The sentence was commuted to life and Meyer was taken to Canada, in 1946 where he was imprisoned in a federal penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B. He was returned to Germany a month ago to serve the remainder of his sentence.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has demanded a review of the death sentence, later commuted to life imprisonment, imposed on German General Kurt Meyer for the murder of Canadian prisoners of war.

"Either Kurt Meyer is guilty or he is not," Mr. Drew told the Commons yesterday.

"If he is guilty, he should receive the punishment that goes with guilt of that kind. If he is not guilty, he should be freed."

He revived the controversial case on the basis of a dispatch by Douglas How, Canadian Press staff writer, reporting that he had come across Meyer on temporary parole in his mother's home in Offleben, Germany.

Mr. Drew protested that there should be no "easy" punishment for a man responsible for the death of Canadian troops.

Iran Would Sell Reds Oil

TEHRAN, Nov. 27 (Reuters)—Iran will sell her oil to the Soviet bloc if the west will not buy it, Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's right-hand man, Hussein Fatemi, said today.

Fatemi accompanied Mossadegh on his unsuccessful trip to the United States to try to get oil contracts.

In a statement, Fatemi said Mossadegh is willing to make a personal appearance before the World Court at The Hague when it hears Britain's case against Iran for nationalizing the formerly British-owned oil-fields.

A petition challenging the competence of the court is being prepared here, he said.

The court has not yet given a decision on its competence to deal with the case, made out May 28, though it has ordered a freeze in nationalization until the issue is decided.

Meanwhile, fighting broke out again today in Tehran's schools when 500 police pulled up in patrol wagons to arrest students suspected of taking part in last night's clashes which injured 100 persons.

Students poured out of the schools in thousands to grapple with the officers. Some of them shouted "Down with Mossadegh" and others "Long live Mossadegh."

Liberals Lead Early Nfld. Vote Returns

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 27 (CP).—Six Liberals had been elected and three were ahead in the only returns reported today in Newfoundland's provincial election.

A storm which struck Nova Scotia last night will hit the province today and as a result final counting will be delayed in at least two districts, Fogo and Fortune Bay-Hermitage.

Isaac Mercer was elected in Port de Grace and Health Minister J. R. Chalker in Harbor Grace, adding two more seats to the four Premier Smallwood's Liberals won by acclamation.

The Progressive Conservatives, meanwhile, protested the voting in at least two St. John's polls. They claimed the two polls were late opening yesterday and that scores of voters had not been able to cast their ballots when the polls closed sharp at 8 p.m.

SPARE ROOM IN THE VICARAGE

Love Blooms Amidst Catastrophe

ROME, Nov. 27 (AP)—There was a spare room in the parish vicarage of the flooded town of Loreo in the Po River delta. That's why Gabriele Marangoni, 24, and his girl, Solidea Benedetti, got married when they did.

Their story of life in the floods was told today in a Rome newspaper:

The young people were "almost engaged" when the floods came. Both stayed behind so older members of their families could be saved.

With no place to go, Gabriele and Solidea appealed to the parish priest.

Yes, he said, he had a spare room in the vicarage, but it wouldn't be right to let an unmarried couple sleep together in it.

Gabriele and Solidea looked at each other, then turned to the priest and said: "We'll get married."

The couple, the mayor, the chief of police and the priest poled over to the church in a barge.

They stood in ankle-deep water while the priest married them.

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 27 (AP)—Carcasses of drowned cattle and horses burned on smoking pyres today as authorities worked to avert a threatened outbreak of disease in the flooded Po River delta.

Workmen towed the dead beasts to fires on high ground in the Polesine and Rovigo areas. Yesterday four cases of scarlet fever were reported there.

Officials feared epidemics might break out as the result of damaged sewer systems and the thousands of animals drowned in the vast flood area.

CANADIAN AID FOR ITALY

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (BUP).—Canada will send relief aid to victims of the Po River flood in Italy when facts of the situation are more clear, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent indicated yesterday.

"As soon as more details are available as to what is urgently needed, we will be in a better position to determine what could or should be done," he said in the Commons.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

POSTHUMOUS HUMOR

WHETHER it is that the fall of the year brings morbid thoughts to some people, or whether it is that, as one of my correspondents puts it, "The high cost of living turns my thoughts to the even higher cost of dying," but my mail lately has included a surprising number of requests for more of the humorous epitaphs to which I have devoted this column more than once.

So I have been digging into my files and have found some that have been sent to me by readers from time to time and some from my own collection, all of them having their funny side.

BLACKSMITH'S EPITAPH

ONE that came in from a reader is taken from the tomb of a blacksmith in Brizenorton Churchyard, Oxfordshire, England, and reads:

"My sledge and hammer lie declined,
My bellows too have lost their wind.
My fire's extinct, my coal's decayed,
And in the dust my voice is laid.
My days are spent, my glass is run;
My nails are drove, my work is done."

At St. Giles Church, Cripplegate, London, may still be seen the ancient stone bearing this inscription:

"Under this marble fair lies the body entomb'd of Gervaise Aire;
He died not of an ague fit, Nor surfeited by too much wit;
Methinks this was a wondrous death, that Aire should die for want of breath."

TO A PIE-MAKER

A CELEBRATED 18th-century pie-woman, Ellen Bachellor, is memorialized in this epitaph on her grave in a London churchyard:

"Beneath in the Dust the mouldy old Crust
Of Ellen Bachellor lately was shoven;
Who was skilled in the Arts of Pies, Custards and Tarts,
And knew every use of the Oven;
When she'd lived long enough she made her last Puff,
A Puff by her husband much praised;
And here she doth lie and make a Dirt Pie,
In hopes that her Crust may be raised."

That reminds me again of the epitaph which was allegedly prepared by a well-known Victoria character named Pye to mark the graves of himself and his wife. But, so the story goes, the surviving relatives ignored his request that the following be inscribed on his tombstone:

"Here lie two Pyes
Both under one Crust."

HUSBANDS AND WIVES

I HAVE often chuckled over some of the old tombstone testimonies to strained connubial relations, some of them attesting to relief, others to something else. Take this choice satirical sample from Hertford Churchyard, which marks the grave of a long-dead woman and her husband:

"Grieve not for me, my husband dear;
I am not dead but sleeping here.
With patience wait, prepare to die,
And in a short time you'll come to I."
"I am not grieved, dearest wife;
Sleep on; I've got another wife:
Therefore I cannot come to thee,
For I must go and live with She."

TOO CANDID

PERHAPS it is as well that all postmortem tributes are not quite so candid as this from Potterne, Wiltshire:

"Here lies Mary, wife of John Ford,
We hope her soul is gone to the Lord;
But if for Hell she hath changed this life,
She'd better be there than John Ford's wife."

And here is another denouncement from Panswick, Glos.:

"My wife is dead and here she lies;
Nobody laughs, nobody cries;
Where she is gone and how she fares,
Nobody knows and nobody cares."

GRISLY DETAILS

FROM A Scottish churchyard comes this epitaph of the early 1800's:

"Here lies the body of Alexander Macpherson;
He was a very extraordinary person;
He was two yards high in his stockin'd feet;
And kept his accoutrements clean and neat;
And he was slew at the battle of Waterloo,
He was shot by a bullet plumb through his gullet.
It went in at his throat and came out at the back of his coat."

After those grisly details this inscription on the tomb of Rev. John Cotton, one of the first ministers in New England, is at least restful if elaborately eulogistic:

"A living breathing Bible; tables where Both covenants at large engraven were;
Gospel and Law in heart had each column,
His head an index to the sacred volume.
His very name a title page; and next
His life a Commentary on the Text.
Oh, what a monument of glorious worth,
When in a new edition he comes forth
Without errata, we may think he'll be
In leaves and covers of eternity."

'Expensive' Dog Held In Saanich

A Saanich resident will be compensated for the killing of 20 of her chickens by a dog last November.

Mrs. Olive E. Southwell, 3927 Cedar Hill Crossroad, will receive $28.25 from municipal autorities following approval of her claim by Saanich Council Monday night.

Councillors were told that the dog which caused the damage was still locked up in the municipal pound—unclaimed by its owners and running up a board bill.

Canadian Fisheries Delegation Seeks Fair, Workable Agreement

News that Japanese fishermen will no longer be allowed to fish in British Columbia waters was brought home to Victoria yesterday by Federal Minister of Fisheries R. W. Mayhew.

Mr. Mayhew has been in Tokyo as head of a Canadian government delegation which is taking part in a conference designed to draw up a new fisheries agreement between Canada, the United States and Japan.

The agreement may not be ready for signing until January, Mr. Mayhew said. Other members of the delegation will remain in Japan to conclude the negotiations.

One of the members of the delegation is E. T. Applewhaite of Prince Rupert, M.P. for the federal riding of Skeena, who has written the following exclusive background article for the Victoria Daily Times:

By E. T. APPLEWHAITE, M.P.
Special to the Times

TOKYO, Nov. 25—For many years there has been a deep-rooted fear on the Pacific Coast of Canada. This fear has been a deterrent to expansion of the efforts made by the government and the fishing industry, for conservation of Pacific Coast fish and for development of the industry itself. That fear has been that at some time the Japanese would exploit our fisheries—fisheries which we have been spending much money and effort to conserve and build up. So it naturally follows that any agreement arrived at by the United States-Canada-Japan Fisheries Conference, which will remove that fear, will be advantageous to Canada.

It might be said that Canada cannot lose, because the present situation under international law is that any country, not bound by treaty, has the legal right to fish up to the three-mile limit off all Canadian shores. That is the position today with respect to Japan, Russia and all countries, except that we have certain restrictive agreements with the United States.

The only danger, then, facing Canada in the present negotiations, is the danger that in the process of reaching an agreement whereby the Japanese forego the exercise of their international rights in fisheries essential to our economy, we might shut ourselves out of other fisheries which might in the future be of value to us.

FISH SUPPLY STATIC

Our prime concern is that our Western Canadian fisheries, notably herring, halibut and salmon be preserved as at present. These resources are being taken now by Canadian and American fishermen, to the fullest possible extent. They will not allow of any additional fishing without permanently depleting the stocks—and unfortunately science does not yet offer any great hopes that the available quantities of fish can be increased materially.

GIVE AND TAKE

To preserve what we have it may be necessary to forego certain possibilities of expansion in other fields. If we want an agreement which will keep others out of our established fisheries, we must expect to agree to keep our fishermen out of other fisheries regarded as essential to the existence of other nations—in this case, Japan.

The American plan is based on the conception that countries mutually agree to forego the exercise of their rights under international law in specified fisheries. They suggest the setting-up of an international commission representing the three countries, to investigate and recommend action along these general lines.

ASK UNANMITY

The plan emphasies the principle of agreement (as contrasted with compulsion) by providing that decisions of the commission must be unanimous; or in other words, that no country is bound by any decision of the commission, unless that country's own representative on the commission has voted in support of such decision.

The proposed treaty would be a three-way agreement, any provision binding upon any one country would be equally effective as between the other two.

Recognizing the work done jointly by Canada and the U.S. on the Pacific coast, and the natural and inevitable intermingling of fish stocks and fishing operations there, the American proposal would provide that neither the United States nor Canada would waive any rights with reference to stocks of fish in the waters of the Pacific coast, from and including the Gulf of Alaska southwards. Thus the respective positions of Canada and the United States, vis-a-vis each other, would remain entirely unchanged.

FREE AGREEMENT

One factor should be borne in mind, both by the delegations at Tokyo and by the peoples of the respective countries concerned, and that is that negotiations must be based upon the principle of give and take—and no country can be expected to do all the giving or all the taking. Unless an agreement is freely and voluntarily entered into, with all parties feeling that its advantages and disadvantages are pretty equally balanced, then the resulting document is not truly an "agreement," and will certainly not be lived up to in spirit and letter.

WANT SECURITY

What Canada wants out of this agreement is security in the fisheries it now operates in the northeast Pacific Ocean. Unless reasonable guarantees of such security are forthcoming, Canada has nothing to gain by becoming a party to a treaty. If such guarantees are obtained, the fishermen and all concerned with the fishing industry on the Pacific coast of Canada will have obtained a benefit the value of which could not be exaggerated.

QUERRY—In Ottawa Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said he had asked for a full explanation today of the use of an RCAF plane to carry a Newfoundland provincial official to Gander to meet an arriving German national.

St. Laurent

Opposition Leader George Drew said the special flight of an RCAF plane from St. John's to Gander and back last Tuesday "according to press reports, was part of the general political activity which has been taking place down there."

BLOOMER? — In Hollywood a writer demanded $150,000 damages today from dancing star Gene Kelly, his film studio and a director on charges of plagiarism.

Writer Errol Joe Palmer charged that he submitted a manuscript called "Base Hits and Bloomers" to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corp. in 1948. Part of the story was used in the film, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," but he was not paid, Palmer said.

The suit named Kelly, who starred in the film, Director Stanley Donen and M-G-M defendants.

DESSERT — In Seattle, Mrs. Claudia Fennell, 53, was convicted of being drunk and driving recklessly and fined $130 in traffic court here Monday despite her testimony that she had not been drinking.

She merely had eaten a bowl of peaches preserved in rum, she told the judge.

UNCHARITABLE—In Toronto Richard Patee, Laval University Hispanic history lecturer, Monday night criticized the "lack of charity" with which the western democracies view Spain and Generalissimo Franco's regime. Mr. Patee, author of the recent book, "This Is Spain," told his lecture audience that although the western democracies are building up the Germans and the Japanese as allies after forgiving and forgetting differences with them, the democracies still look coldly upon Spain, "a country with which we were not at war."

SMARTER—In Los Angeles a huge mechanical kidney that actually is "smarter" than a natural kidney is being used to revive persons who attempt suicide by taking overdoses of bromides.

Dr. John P. Merrill of Boston told the opening session of a meeting of Los Angeles urologists Monday of the 400-pound artificial kidney, which also can be used as a mechanical heart.

Merrill said about 265 persons already have been treated with the kidney for acute cases of kidney shutdown. The machine makes it possible for the first time to change the composition of human blood directly outside the body, he said.

WILLED—In Seattle an estate of $1,915,283 was left by Mrs. Sarah Harris Johnson, who died at the age of 54 in Portland on June 24, an inventory filed with the county clerk revealed Monday.

Mrs. Johnson was the widow of John X Johnson, owner of a Seattle fishing fleet, and daughter of P. E. Harris, Seattle financier and Alaska salmon packer.

Mrs. Johnson left the bulk of her estate in trust to Whitman College, Walla Walla; the Seattle Children's Orthopedic Hospital; College of Puget Sound; Church of the Epiphany; Seattle Day Nursery; Lighthouse for the Blind, and the Washington State Heart Association.

GRANNIE—In Dayton, O., the Federal Bureau of Investigation searched for $211,950 still missing from the Wright Field Credit Union today after a 49-year-old grandmother was sentenced to nine years in prison for embezzling $12,047 of its funds.

Mrs. Bernice S. Emerick, who married a former U.C.L.A. football star during a spending orgy in Las Vegas, Nev., last July, told Federal Judge Robert R. Nevin Monday she took $12,047 of the missing $224,000. She pleaded guilty to 13 of 15 embezzlement counts.

BLISS—In Los Angeles Korea war veteran Michael Thomas O'Rourke, who was jailed for a year-old traffic offense when he returned from combat, will be married Friday night with the judge who sentenced him as a wedding guest.

The 22-year-old ex-soldier, who got home in time for Thanksgiving and then spent it in jail, announced Monday that he will marry his fiance, Joan Adams, 19, in nearby South Pasadena.

BEGGING—In Reno a witness in the Magdaline Hamilik murder trial testified Monday he saw Mrs. Hamilik bending over the boy she is accused of murdering, begging him to "wake up."

The witness, Eugene Enhelder, a telephone lineman, was one of four called by the prosecution on the opening day of the trial. A jury of nine men and three women was chosen to hear the case.

Mrs. Hamilik, a 37-year-old British war bride who came to Reno to divorce her husband, is accused of strangling four-year-old Bobby Podger on Aug. 31.

RIDDANCE—In New York Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McKinney says he and President Truman will rid the government and their party of "any termite" in public office guilty of political corruption.

The pledge was made Monday night by the new party chairman at a $100-a-plate dinner meeting of the Democratic national committee.

McKinney, an Indianapolis banker, told 2,500 Democrats that "any man who betrays the people's trust in public office is a public enemy."

"Any man who betrays a public trust in a Democratic administration is an enemy of the Democratic party," he said.

COMMON — In Fort Worth, Tex., Timba, 20-pound victim of a "lion-naping," was back in the hands of his owner today after detectives located him munching horsemeat and playing with a common housecat in a Fort Worth woman's bathroom.

The lion cub was turned over to his owner, Russell Kirkpatrick, Monday night. Kirkpatrick said he would ship the animal to Hollywood immediately for belated training for a movie career.

The woman at the house where Timba was found said she bought the stolen animal from an unidentified man, presumably the one seen leading Timba down a Fort Worth street early Monday.

Detective Tom Hoote said the search would continue for the thief.

She has 55 great-great-grandchildren, 209 great-grandchildren and 77 grandchildren. Eight of her own 20 children are still living.

In the early 30's Mrs. Stevens won a newspaper-sponsored contest for "the greatest grandmother in Nova Scotia." She figures she could probably win it again.

Memorial Arena Drain On Funds

By DAVE STOCK

Victoria's Memorial Arena needs another $56,124 spent on it. Perhaps more.

That is the gist of a report submitted to city aldermen Monday evening.

The report came from Swan, Rhodes & Wooster, of Vancouver, consulting engineers. It was asked by City Council last September to survey the arena to determine what was wrong, why it was wrong and what would have to be done to put it right.

With respect to the building itself, the consultants report the roof still leaks, and that there are many cracks and defects in the walls. Repairs to the building, they say, will cost between $32,000 and $35,000.

The report recommends that the barrel roof, where not already covered, be covered with "insul mastic." This will cost $19,000. It recommends further that the flat section of the roof be coated with tar and gravel. This will cost $4,000.

Defects in the present walls are clearly evident from outside observation, the report goes on.

"It is desirable both for the maintenance and exterior appearance of the building that the whole of the exterior wall be overhauled."

The bill for this, it is suggested, will be $5,500.

Other structural changes suggested provide for an exhaust fan for the boiler room, costing $600; a galvanized pipe rail to regulate customers at the concession stands, costing $331, and new flag pole supports, costing $125.

Work on the roof and on the walls, the report suggests, should not be undertaken until spring when the weather is good.

Col. Sherman, who made the refrigeration plant inspection, calls for a new set of ammonia coils and an entirely new compressor unit complete with automatic controls. The bill for this equipment, when installed, will run to $17,400.

Col. Sherman, in his 16-page brief, charges that the equipment now in the building has not been used properly.

In summarizing, the consultant says: "Operation of the refrigeration plant at the arena left much to be desired. Conditions favorable to the rapid development of corrosion in the coils were not cured even when the causes should have been obvious."

Col. Sherman says the ammonia coils which caused so much trouble at the beginning of the current season were corroded because sludge was allowed to accumulate in the brine tanks.

"No provision appears to have been made either for repair of the coils or cleaning the tanks," Col. Sherman wrote into his report.

He suggests the city make peace with the Canadian Ice Machine Co., which installed the ice-making equipment, and arrange to have it supply a man on a part-time basis to run the machinery from now until other operators can be trained to do the job.

With respect to the arena floor, Col. Sherman says he has found indications that coils embedded in the concrete are leaking. He says one area should be opened up as soon as possible to allow for a proper examination of the pipe.

"The whole floor slab may be involved if corrosion in the brine tubes is found to be far advanced," he says.

Dealing with the northeast corner of the floor, which shifts upward when the ice-making machinery is working, he suggests water is accumulating in rock pools underneath this section and that natural expansion of the freezing is causing the lifting. He says a close check should be kept on this corner.

He says it might be advisable to pull up this section of floor during the summer of 1952 and blast the rock out from underneath to a depth of about 24 inches. The excavation thus made should be packed with the same sort of filling as is under the rest of the floor.

Electrical Engineer Muirhead recommended that each of the eight big lighting fixtures over the rink be lowered 10 feet. This would make illumination on the floor more uniform. He suggests also a variation in control of switching and elimination of the cove ceiling lights. The last recommendation, he estimates, will save the city about $1,000 a year. To carry out all his suggestions would cost $3,600.

A further recommendation of the consultants is that steps be taken to keep spray from the pond at the rear of the building, instead of letting it blow all over the neighborhood; and that a proper drainage from the rock hillside be intercepted before it runs under the building. This will cost $2,850.

Council Promises Esquimalt Voters Orderly Meeting

Esquimalt Council has decided that it will maintain order at its Dec. 12 meeting preceding the municipal elections on Dec. 15.

Councillors urged Reeve A. I. Thomas at a meeting Monday to see that there would be no disorder which marked last year's public meeting.

"We don't want any squabbles like last year," said Councillor G. R. Guillemaud. "We want order."

Reeve Thomas said he had arranged for G. K. Sammon, president of the ratepayers' association, to act as chairman at the public meeting. It will be his job to maintain order, he said.

Oak Bay Liberals Headed By Ewing

Dr. J. M. Ewing was elected president of the Oak Bay Liberal Association at the organization's annual meeting Monday. G. F. Gregory was elected vice-president, P. A. Gibbs, secretary, and Mrs. E. S. Farr, recording secretary.

Executive officers elected were: J. V. Johnson, G. Gardner, C. C. Annett, Roy Hebden, W. M. Walker, J. B. Clearihue, Mrs. G. Lake, W. Young and S. Flanagan.

TRANSLATORS CRITICIZED

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (BUP). —Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib.-Temiscouata, Que.) complained today that French translators were not using good Canadian French, but a new language which he called "the language of bureaucracy."

Pouliot, who always speaks in English in the House, complained about the way his speeches were translated into his mother tongue for the French edition of Hansard, the parliamentary record.

Submit Plans To N.A.T.O. for Army Speed-Up

ROME, Nov. 27 (AP). — The United States and Belgium today introduced separate resolutions to the North Atlantic Council designed to speed up establishment of a European army.

Both resolutions were quickly referred to the N.A.T.O. deputies, who will try to combine them into one plan to put before the council Wednesday.

Council chairman, L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, said he thought the "margin between (the two plans) was not very great."

He described the plans as an effort to give a "push forward" to the move for the European army and for bringing in countries other than those belonging to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—presumably a reference to West Germany.

Other developments today included:

A private breakfast at which General Eisenhower entertained Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain. Eisenhower appealed for British agreement to the appointment of an American naval commander for the North Atlantic and adoption of .30-calibre ammunition as the standard for the Atlantic armies' small arms.

A meeting of the Big Three foreign and defense ministers to discuss the proposed Middle East command. A qualified informant said they made some progress but that nothing concrete emerged from the meeting.

Big Three Prepared To Meet Russia For Full Discussion On Disarmament

PARIS, Nov. 27 (CP)—The U.S., Britain and France are ready to meet Russia in a special committee to attempt to reconcile their proposed methods of world disarmament, a U.S. spokesman said today.

Eight countries in the 60-nation U.N. political committee have lined up behind a resolution asking for this move to be taken in a bid to align the separate eastern and western peace plans.

The U.S. spokesman said that while the Big Three were in broad agreement on the idea, the U.S. reserved the right to suggest changes in the wording of the resolution.

Afghanistan, Indonesia, Egypt and Saudi Arabia have declared their backing for the motion, originally sponsored Monday by Pakistan, Iraq and Syria. India also tentatively—but not formally—suggested a similar course of action Monday.

The U.S. took the initiative from the Russians Monday by approving the Arab-Asian proposal for the four-power conference.

ONUS ON VISHINSKY

The U.S. move left it squarely up to Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to say whether Russia will participate. A "no" answer would be interpreted generally as unwillingness to go half-way in taking every proferred chance to restore world stability.

Vishinsky Monday told reporters he was thinking over the proposal—made by Pakistan, Iraq and Syria and supported by India.

A U.S. move to limit any such private discussions appeared likely following U.S. Ambassador Philip Jessup's speech Monday. Jessup said that the deputies of the Big Four powers wrangled for more than three months in Paris this year without being able to agree on an acceptable agenda for such talks.

A French spokesman told reporters that his government was studying the Asian-Arab proposal with interest. He indicated France will favor it.

Discussion in the assembly's political committee continued today on the western proposal for a closely-supervised, step-by-step disarmament.

Assault On Police Charge For Trial

Robert Davis, 283 Michigan, was sent up for trial on a charge of assaulting Constable William Knowles, in city court today by Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Preliminary hearing on the charge was heard in the court Monday.

Seven Ming Sung Vessels Still Fly Canadian Flag

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (BUP).—Two Canadian-built vessels of the Ming Sung Industrial Co. fly the Communist flag and seven others fly the Canadian marine ensign, it was revealed in Parliament Monday.

The government's statement was made over the signature of Secretary of State Gordon Bradley in reply to questions put on the House order paper by opposition defense critic G. R. Pearkes (P.C.-Nanaimo).

The government said the vessels carrying the Canadian flag and listed under Canadian registry by the Ming Sung Industrial Co. of Canada had not been back to Hong Kong since the government was called on late this summer by Canadian banks to implement a guarantee backing the mortgages held on the ships.

At that time, the government directed legal proceedings to be launched against the company to secure the ships.

A statement tabled by Bradley said the seven ships "are not known to be flying any other than the Canadian flag."

Changing The Time-Table

AT ROME THE EXECUTIVE COMMITtee of the North Atlantic Treaty is now making decisions which will affect the life of every nation in the alliance.

The purpose of the present conference is to adjust the rearmament plans of all these nations to fit their economic resources. The net result probably will be to amend not the total effort but its timing.

It seems to be agreed that the time-table laid down in the last year is too fast and involves too great and sudden a strain on the European states. Therefore the armament program apparently will be stretched over a longer period than was originally planned.

It has been intended to provide General Eisenhower with 60 or 70 divisions in Europe by 1954. Now all efforts are being concentrated on providing 40 divisions next year, a much less formidable problem of military production. Whether the long-term objective is to be scaled down or postponed beyond 1954 remains to be seen.

In any case it is now agreed that Britain and western Europe cannot fulfill the earlier plan in the scheduled period without either a drastic reduction in living standards or a large measure of American aid.

Here the free world enters on a grim gamble. It must choose on the one hand to make Europe defensible in the near future at the risk of economic disturbance which might destroy its existing governments and elect others which would destroy the joint rearmament plan altogether; or, on the other, it must modify its efforts and take the chance of a Russian attack before Europe is ready to repel it. At the moment it would seem that the latter alternative is to be followed.

In one way this may suit Russia, whose major objective is to prevent western rearmament. In another way it may forestall the kind of economic breakdown in the west on which Russia has counted from the beginning, in accordance with the ancient prophesies of Marx. Assuredly nothing could suit Russia so well as a rearmament plan or any other strain which broke the economic strength of the free world.

It is clear now that not only Europe but the rich United States fears the strains of rearmament carried forward too massively and too fast. So far the United States Congress has tentatively allocated $146.7 billions for defense but in the last 15 months it has spent only $35.5 billions. This is a huge figure, unimaginable in any other country, but well within the capacities of a nation whose total production is now running at a rate of over $300 billions a year. The inflation so far in America has not been due mainly to military expenditure but to the demands of the public for consumer goods.

It is clear also that rearmament in the United States already is behind schedule. General Eisenhower has been in Washington recently pleading for more arms to equip his European forces and complaining that he is not receiving what he was promised by this date. Meanwhile it is reported in Washington that next year's defense budget will be scaled down by nearly a fifth before it can produce serious economic pressures.

The danger in all this is equally clear. It is that, fearing more inflation in America and grave hardships to the consumers of Europe, the partners of the North Atlantic Treaty will be frightened into a premature reduction in their joint rearmament and thus will postpone too long the day when they can bargain with Russia "from strength."

The real question, soon to be answered, is whether the democratic peoples are willing to accept a reduction in their living standards sufficient to assure that strength at any time in the visible future. The reduction in the United States and Canada, even under the existing schedule, would be small. In Europe it would be much larger. But even in America, now living better than ever, there seems to be little willingness to pay the economic price of safety. That, of course, is why we have inflation—the attempt to take more goods out of the available supply than the most efficient productive system in the world can yet provide.

On Making Money

WHEN PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS CREate money they are put in jail. But private banks create money every day, legally and properly, in the form of credit. There is nothing wrong about this, and nothing harmful, so long as the banks do not create too much, or too little.

In the latter half of 1950 the Canadian banks were creating so much, so fast, that their expanding loans threatened to blow off the roof of the national economy. In February last the government stepped in and, through its own central bank, the Bank of Canada, urged the private bankers to be a little more careful. Thus began the policy of voluntary restraint in bank lending, a policy essential to hold down an increasing money supply which was bidding up prices.

How far the policy has succeeded, or failed, is now revealed in figures supplied to Parliament. They show that in February, when the government intervened, bank loans, i.e. money, totaled $2.9 billions, an alarmingly high figure. By the end of September they had risen to $3.1 billions. The increase was $240 millions.

This certainly was more than the government had expected and obviously was too much. But clearly if the government had not intervened it would have been much more. While bank credit expanded a quarter of a billion in eight months it had expanded by about an equal amount during a few months last autumn and winter. The upward momentum was not arrested but it was curbed.

This was notable since the pressure on the banks for loans has been greater this year than ever, to finance an unprecedented capital investment boom and a huge wheat crop.

Whether the government is satisfied that the banks are doing their best to hold down their own inflationary pressure Parliament has not been told but clearly more must be done if the money supply is not to keep rising sharply in the year ahead. The effect of increased interest rates, discouraging to borrowers, remains to be seen. At the moment we are still making too much money, as distinguished from goods, on which money is merely a claim.

The New Bootleggers

IN QUEBEC, WHERE THE EXPERIment is under way, the prohibition of margarine is turning out to be even more hopeless than the prohibition of liquor in the speakeasy age of the twenties.

It is illegal to sell margarine in Quebec, illegal also to import it from other provinces. But, as could have been foreseen, margarine is appearing on the shelves of the Quebec stores. It appears in the most misleading form, labeled as butter.

This is not what the dairy interests expected when their rural votes compelled Premier Duplessis to prohibit margarine. Assuredly they did not want their own dairy product confused with a substitute but that is what happens, inevitably. Since they cannot import or buy margarine legally the Quebec people buy it illegally and call it butter, much as various liquors were sold during prohibition as well-aged Scotch.

Fortunately margarine is harmless, wholesome and nourishing. The bootlegging of this product threatens no bodily harm to anyone. It does threaten the sanctity of the law, just as prohibition did.

What else did Mr. Duplessis expect when he tried to keep the people from buying a useful and relatively cheap foodstuff? Probably Mr. Duplessis knew, for he is an intelligent man, exactly what would happen. And probably when his attempted prohibition has proved farcical enough he will feel able, politically, to end it.

Fortunately no such nonsense was attempted by the government and legislature of British Columbia but even here a fatuous gesture of appeasement to the dairy farmer was made in the form of a law forbidding manufacturers to color their margarine. It will make no difference to the farmer but a great difference to the housewife if this absurdity is removed. We hope that Capt. Proudfoot will go ahead with his bill to make colored margarine legal as soon as the legislature meets. Most British Columbians, including the farmers, will approve it.

It's A Job For Us All

APPROACHING CIVIC ELECTIONS, two recent provincial elections and increasing talk of a contest in British Columbia before the term of the present government is up in 1954 all help at this time to focus attention on this supreme test of the democratic system.

Elections are the voice of the people, in theory. Far too often they are the voice of only a small section of the people. We list nazism, fascism, communism as the enemies of democracy. We tend to overlook lethargy, perhaps the greatest enemy of them all.

A frequently-heard excuse for lethargy is that "my vote won't count." Politics is run by the party machines, it is said. The vote of a college professor can be cancelled out by that of the stupidest citizen. So go the arguments, and with them goes condemnation of the "party machines" and claims that politics is a dirty business.

With such charges there can be little patience. As the New York Times pointed out recently, political "machines are so often controlled by the wrong people only because the right people have defaulted on the responsibilities of good citizenship that go beyond the once-a-year visit to the polls."

The fact is that our community life—the raison d'etre for politics—is a year-round job, just as our individual life is. We cannot expect to neglect either for long and not suffer serious consequences. Democracy is a continuing trust which must be faithfully discharged. If good citizens will not carry the load, they will find unworthy elements only too ready to take the job over—and run it for their own ends.

Doesn't Sound Like A Lion

A LOCAL service club has been given an explanation of square dance history, has seen a demonstration by a high school group, and has drawn its own conclusions from word and action. It is to be hoped the club spokesman quoted after the show does not reflect the general attitude of his fellows. Said that gentleman:

"Looks like a lot of fun, but half an hour of that would probably kill me."

Is the pioneer spirit so defunct in today's mature Canadians? Have we reached the point at which the simple entertainment of an earlier generation is viewed as a threat to life itself?

And what was the service club member who made this craven observation? A Lion, no less.

Faugh, sir! Back to the "Wizard of Oz," or into the dance with you. We'd be happy to watch.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

MY OWN formal education ended many years ago, thank God. I suppose it ended when I was called to the Bar in 1933 . . . called in a very faint voice, as if the Bar wanted me no more than I wanted it. So I got well out of touch with formal education until my own children began to get through the baby grades and started to take their own education seriously. And thus I was in for several nasty shocks. For one thing, I had imagined that nobody was still so foolish as to penalize a child for a certain untidy manner while writing an examination. I imagined this on no particular evidence. . . . I just kindly assumed that people had got more sense than they had when I was being instructed by my fellow half-wits.

Brock

IT IS TRUE that a written exam exam should be easily legible, lest it offend the much-tried teacher. Once offended and given still more unnecessary toil, this over-worked man or woman can't be blamed for doing his or her best to flunk you. But apart from legibility, what on earth does neatness matter in an exam? It matters as little as it did to an old fraud of a teacher who used, quite automatically, to give each of us "50 per cent for Neatness and Method," thus ensuring that no pupil of his ever got less than 50 per cent . . . except when we came to our Matric, which was marked by hands other than his, and we all failed dismally. . . . I think we set a new B.C. record for unanimous failure.

A POOR KID writing an exam is either working at fever heat, or is in a little hell of fear. Neither condition should make for neatness. The child who is neat under such conditions is a cold-blooded monster who needs a reform school, not an ordinary education. He'll probably turn out to be a forger. There's nobody to beat a forger for neatness.

I am not speaking about big, public, formal exams like the Matric. In these, I should think, neatness matters not a pin. At least, I hope it doesn't. No, I refer to little tests inside the school. Tests set and marked by a teacher who tries to make all the pupils write exactly the same as she does . . . in other words, to write without character and without joy and with a neatness that is not only bleak but actually rather messy. It is messy in the sense that a bad drawing is messy, no matter how carefully and slickly it is drawn.

RALEIGH ON EXAMS

IT IS NOT always easy to get a copy of Professor Raleigh's "Laughter From a Cloud," a collection of his private trifles which was published by his family after his very wasteful death in 1922. (Constable & Co., London, 1923.) My own copy came to me in a slightly dishonest way, though I can't tell you the details for fear of shaming the donor, who meant well. She said she got it for me, not herself, and as she had no selfish motive, that made everything all right. I've never been able to find the real owner, to return the thing. I'm happy to say.

WELL, SINCE YOU probably haven't a copy, I'd like to quote Raleigh on examinations. He meant Oxford ones, but his remarks apply almost anywhere. "Candidates write their opinion in manuscript books, Examiners on class lists. Both are often wrong." "The nightingale got no prize at the poultry show." "No instrument smaller than the World is fit to measure men and women: Examinations measure Examinees." "In Examinations, those who do not wish to know ask questions of those who cannot tell." "The Oxford Final Schools and the Day of Judgment are two examinations, not one." "Dr. Johnson said that questioning is not the mode of conversation among gentlemen. Dr. Johnson left Oxford without a degree." And so on . . . there are three pages of this excellent and encouraging stuff. Tell your young . . . and their teachers.

ATONEMENT

I WAS SPEAKING just now of the friend who pinched the book on my behalf and thus felt herself wholly honest. Amor omnia vincit . . . which means that so long as she liked old Brocky, everything was O.K. The other day a slightly similar event took place among the boys on our street. A purification of theft, so to speak.

Boy Sam had meanly thrown the slingshot of Boy Jim into the ocean, never to be seen again. Boy Jim was naturally annoyed. Talking it over with Boy Joe, he said "What does Sam like best?" "Oh, movies and cake," said Joe, without hesitation. "No, no," said Jim, "what does he like best of the stuff he owns?" "His football," said Joe. "All right, then, I'll take that," said Jim. Joe thought this over and then said mildly "That would still be stealing, wouldn't it?" "The heck it would," said Jim, "not the way I'd fix it." "How would you fix it?" asked Joe. "Why," says Jim, "I'd just fix it, that's all. I'd make it all right. I'd give it to the Crippled Children."

The idea of giving a football to the poor crippled kids is so fantastic that I, who was in the next room, laughed aloud. Laughed at Boy Jim, not at the cripples. Whereupon this remarkable conversation abruptly ceased and Boy Jim went swiftly home.

Cost Of Words

Ottawa Journal

Hacking away at our typewriter, as we have hacked these many years, we were dismayed by Mr. Winter, the resources minister, who told the Commons that the manufacture of newsprint each year requires approximately 55,000,000 trees nine inches in diameter at breast height and 50 feet tall.

At this pace it seemed we soon would write our way through the forests of Canada and be reduced to delivering our messages on lambskin or papyri, with complications too dreadful to contemplate.

'Pardon My Glove'

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

I HAVE never been good at the art of smuggling. I suspect that this has something to do with my face. I don't think it's such a bad face, considering the kind of life I've led it, but I have learned through many years of experience that there is a certain type of physiognomy known as the Border-Crossing Face, and mine isn't.

Sturdy

Customs officers, immigration officers and gumshoes of the Department of Internal Revenue seem to be drawn to me whenever I approach any one of the 4,000 miles of so-called undefended border. When friends of mine trip blithely back and forth across the international line with 100-proof bourbon, mixmasters and television sets, I stand at the border being searched. It's got so bad now that I don't even dare to carry a butted Lucky Strike from one country to the other.

Of course, this is nothing new. I remember one time when I was traveling by train between Montreal and New York the customs men came aboard at Malone. The passed up everybody in our coach with perfunctory questions unlit they reached me. There were two of them, and I saw their eyes glitter even before they pounced. They disemboweled my suitcase and even poked at the lining. "Stand up, mister," they said, and frisked me. "Take your shoes off, mister," they ordered and looked inside and tapped the heels. "Give us your fountain pen, mister," they snarled, and drained it of ink.

And then one of them, who was going through my wallet, suddenly exclaimed: "Heck, this guy's carrying a press card. He's only a newspaper reporter." His companion gave him a disgusted glare and returned my fountain pen—empty of course. As they opened the door to the next coach I heard one say: "You dummox! You're always picking the wrong guy. We're after a jewel smuggler."

"Well," said the other, "you've got to admit he looks like one, don't you?"

That's what I mean about my face being definitely not the Border-Crossing Type. Since that time I have not attempted to smuggle anything, and when the customs men approach I always stand up, with arms extended, ready for the search.

I am writing these lines on a southbound train, having just gone through another harrowing experience. I am accompanying Col. S. Skeffington-Smutts (Ret.) to Hollywood, where the Colonel is going to work in motion pictures as technical adviser (and who knows, perhaps the star) of an epic to be called "The Poona Lancers." Accompanying us, for good measure, are Hamish, Anastasia Wiggs-Wiggs and Little Augie. (I wonder if the California state troopers know about this?)

We were sitting in the parlor car when the immigration and customs men came aboard. It was an overheated car, and I happened to notice Little Augie apparently was suffering from the closeness of the atmosphere. There were beads of perspiration on his brow and he was biting his lips. I didn't notice then that he also seemed to have swollen somewhat.

After I had been searched there was a moment of confusion over the Colonel's sabre. The customs men wanted to know if he had purchased it in Canada. "Purchased it?" shouted the Colonel, getting red in the face. "This sword, you mercenaries, was presented to me by the Maharajah of Poobar."

One of the customs men looked in his book and admitted he couldn't find a rate of duty on "Made in India" swords, while the other one seemed more concerned with the possibility that carrying a sabre across the border might be constituted as an Un-American Activity. Eventually, however, they gave up and let the Colonel keep his sword. (As if they could have taken it away from him!) Then they turned to Little Augie.

Little Augie looked enormous when he stood up. There was sweat running down his cheeks from the stifling heat of the car and he looked ghastly.

"Anything to declare?" he was asked.

Pop!

One of the customs men screamed and clutched at his eyes. With horror I looked at Little Augie and he was foaming at the chest.

Pop! Pop! Pop!

Little Augie seemed to disappear in a cascade of foam. I dodged a bottle cap that whistled over my shoulder and hit Anastasia Wiggs-Wiggs in the ear. She swung wildly, and the second customs man flew through the air.

Bottles began to drop from every section of Little Augie. The parlor car dripped with foam and amber liquid. It was a devastating sight, and the customs men retreated in the face of it. They refused to come back.

As Little Augie explained later: "I had an idea I bottled that last batch of home-brew too soon. But we left in such a hurry. I guess I'll stock up with commercial stuff when we reach California."

Urges Tolerance

I think it is time some people gave up trying to cause trouble in letters. They should be thankful they can talk or write. Why not look back to see where they would have been under some countries. No free speech and no free thoughts, little money and less food.

Money is not everything, honor is far better and trying to do good to those who are trying to live and pay their way. We will all have to leave this world sooner or later and no one can take a cent with him. So it would be far better if good ideas and good thoughts were sent out.

APPRECIATION

May we take this opportunity to thank your newspaper and the many who so kindly helped us in so many thoughtful ways after our misfortune. May we say gratefully, many, many thanks.

MR. AND MRS. DART AND FAMILY.

HOSPITALIZATION

Might I suggest that owing to the fact we all have to pay this wonderful hospitalization, which some of us can little afford to have taken out of our wage packet, that those who do not benefit from it in the course of one to five years be given a rebate. Then perhaps there would be fewer sick people and more spare beds for those who really need to be in hospital.

CANDIDATE

With a committee to regulate our recreation and another to see that somebody's backhouse doesn't affront the tourist and another suggesting that the controversy of the bobby helmet be brought up again and another suggesting that poison oats is just good breakfast food for wild life (apologies if I should be wrong here), I suggest a committee to give us a sense of humor and of course at a suitably large salary I don't mind heading it myself.

BEER SUPPLY

I am in favor of the boys who strike against the big shot owners of the breweries, but that does not mean we can not have beer. There is lots of good beer made in St. Boniface, Manitoba; in cities in Alberta too, in Ontario too, in Quebec too.

Does not the Liquor Control Board have to consider the wishes of ordinary people who need beer? I notice he says categorically that he will not order more other Canadian beer. Is he not paid by the people to cater to the people?

PENSIONS

Just recently the increase in war disability pensions has been much in the news; and I wonder if anyone knows the predicament of a widow on a war veteran's allowance, receiving $40 a month out of which she must pay $30 per year Hospital Insurance and all doctor and medicine costs—where these are found for an old-age pensioner.

She is permitted to own her home (and pay taxes and insurance on it) but must have no other income however small, and is subjected to regular "visits" to inquire into her financial status and make sure that she has not taken a job. As most of these widows are well over 60 years of age the "job" is rather a joke.

With the increase in living costs you can imagine how far $40 a month will go for food, fuel, light, water, insurance, medicine, etc.

The old war veterans on the burnt-out pension have often done a great deal more for their country—Boer War, Nile and other uprisings and Great War and have suffered greatly.

To go through all that hell and live to struggle through a depression trying to raise a family on a restricted earning power and then have to know his widow will be left to starve on $40 a month is a bitter pill to swallow.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"APART," said the Elevator Man, "from lions with their manes, American businessmen with their neckties and a few other creatures with an eye to beauty, the only males who outdo females in the brightness of their raiment these days are birds. But except for fallen sparrows, birds don't really get much attention. You could say generally that the weaker sex has put it all over the menfolk as regards sartorial elegance. But it wasn't always thus. Time was when the curled tresses of the gentlemen, the colorful satins, the tailored velvets and the perfumed lace of bachelors and husbands put the ladies in the shade. But if women borrowed any ideas from men in those days, they've more than paid us back. One feminine hat, modern style, can make up for a good many years of second-fiddle dressing. Man gave up the contest long ago and retired into a tweed uniform. Woman has won the battle of finery—except that when she wants to look particularly striking she puts on something guaranteed mannish. Lower main!

Tobin

"However," said the Elevator Man, "there is still a trace of masculine splendor here and there. In France, for instance, town mayors since the days of the Revolution have donned a red, white and blue sash when performing their official functions. That's a bit garish, maybe, but when men's clothes had a little more flair a few years back it didn't go so badly. More recently the mayors have been feeling a mite self-conscious in their patriotic bunting. They said it didn't go well with modern business suits. And they appealed to the federal government to let them wear some little official badge instead. Paris brass took the matter under consideration. Meetings were held, conferences called. The great republic grappled with the problem. Finally the mayors received a decision, published in the "Official Journal." But of course, said the government, the mayors could wear a little official badge—as long as they wear the sash too. Going down!

"So," said the Elevator Man, "I guess the mayors will stay draped. After all, clothes make the man, though in these days of inflation they may break him too."

Alderman Lays Charge Patton Misled Council

Charges that city solicitor Arthur Patton misled City Council on the time required to reduce council membership from 10 to eight were leveled by Ald. Robert Macmillan Monday.

Patton indignantly replied that his appreciation of the situation was right. He had contended the council could be reduced by January, 1954.

"I still maintain," he said, answering a thoroughly aroused Ald. Macmillan, "regardless of Mr. Bracewell (deputy minister of municipal affairs), regardless of the minister, regardless of the attorney-general, that I'm right."

Ald. Macmillan's broadside was delivered at a special council meeting on formalities to precede a referendum on reduction of council. Ald. Macmillan sponsored the move originally.

On the solicitor's advice, a by-law has been drafted which would provide for an eight-man council in January, 1954. Ald. Macmillan, in his stand before council, argued the reduction could be achieved by the beginning of 1953.

"I have it on exceptionally good authority that the council can be reduced at once by two and that the reduction could be completed next year," Ald. Macmillan declared.

He subsequently revealed his authority to be B. C. Bracewell, deputy minister of municipal affairs for the B.C. government.

"The city solicitor gave a statement of misinformation to this council and to a whole gallery of spectators," Macmillan said.

"I don't like you castigating anyone like that by using the word untruth," the mayor said. "You mean you don't agree with what Mr. Patton said."

Patton seized the opportunity to submit his own defense.

Ald. Waldo Skillings offered some support to Ald. Macmillan, though he attempted not to disturb the City Solicitor further.

"I remember the solicitor said this was one way to bring about council reduction—and the most legal way to act," he began cautiously. "But I've made certain inquiries and from very competent legal sources I find there is legal opinion that it can be done in one step.

"I'm led to believe it could be done in one step," he finally asserted, "and I would like the city solicitor to delve further into it."

Mayor George defended Solicitor Patton's stand. He reiterated his earlier statements that the solicitor's method of reducing council was the best and "only dignified way."

Bids were made by the Vancouver firms of Campbell, Bennett Ltd. ($947,755.64), and Dawson, Wade Ltd. ($904,819.25).

Both tenders will be studied by the sewer committee and municipal engineers, who will bring in a report at a later date.

HOME GARDEN

by Hilda Beastall

Once a person has been actively engaged in gardening, even as a hobby, nothing can ever take its place. To an invalided gardener the reading of books and catalogues may give pleasure, but it is the actual feel of the soil and the growing plants which satisfy the soul.

Hilda

A small garden on wheels is ideal in such instances, built on an outdoor style of tea wagon or some more adjustable style of wagon devised by the handyman of the house. The main point is to have it easily movable and of a height to suit the chair or bed of the indoor gardener.

Two trays, preferably of metal such as large bread or baking trays, form the top, fixed in a manner to prevent sliding. Wooden trays may be used if necessary, but they are intended for holding damp peat moss in which the pots are embedded, thus providing the much needed humidity around the plants.

The choice of growing material is limitless and the plants need not be expensive, for the amateur gardener confined to the house will enjoy most of the outdoor subjects. A collection of rock plants or small border subjects in three or four-inch pots, seeding trees, individual bulbs in small pots, all are suitable.

A collection of spicy scented herbs suggests itself, which may include a small lavender, a dainty rosemary, lemon verbena (Lippia citriodora), lemon balm (Melissa officinalis), and sweet marjoram.

The above suggestions are not indoor plants, and the wagon should be wheeled to an outside porch or a sheltered place each day for a few hours of fresh air.

Tending the plants' need of water and fertilizer, growing new plants from seed and cuttings, picking off old leaves and blooms, are little chores which will provide an endless variety of interest and many hours of happiness.

MEET WEDNESDAY

The Victoria Prayer Group will meet on Wednesday in the Memorial Hall at 3 p.m.

Canada In On Korean Talks

St. Laurent Tells Commons Recommendations Made By Negotiators Relayed To Government

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (BUP).—Canada will be in on the ground floor on the Korean truce negotiations, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent indicated Monday night.

Mr. St. Laurent, fresh from an evening reception and still wearing his black tie and tuxedo, told the Commons just before adjournment that whatever recommendations made by the truce negotiators would come to Canada through the unified command of United Nations forces.

He said the recommendations form one of the three points still to be settled by the negotiators after agreement on a cease-fire line.

The Prime Minister's statement said in part:

"The information I have received is that the sub-delegations of the United Nations and enemy delegations meeting at Panmunjom have agreed on the line of contact between the United Nations and enemy forces for the 145 miles across the peninsula of Korea, and have thereby established the description of a neutral buffer zone which would extend two kilometers in depth from this contact line on either side, and from which both sides will withdraw if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

"However, before a cease-fire line can take effect it will be necessary for the full delegations to concur on arrangements for inspection to ensure that the truce is being observed, and to care for the exchange of war prisoners. There is a third remaining outstanding item on 'recommendations to the governments concerned on both sides,' which has not yet been explored. And it is only when agreement on all three of these outstanding points has been reached that it will be possible for a cease-fire to take official effect."

Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) asked whether it was likely that warfare would be reduced to a minimum until a final truce was agreed upon, and the Prime Minister added:

"There is nothing in the despatches bearing upon that. That would evidently be sometning that would be determined in the field by the local commanders of the opposing forces."

Knowles asked what were the outstanding matters of concern to various governments, included on the agenda.

Mr. St. Laurent: "There is a third remaining outstanding item on 'recommendations to the governments concerned on both sides.' I assume that the recommendations would be made through the united command to all the governments having forces participating in the action of the United Nations."

Knowles: "So we are one of those governments concerned?"

Mr. St. Laurent: "It is my understanding that we are one of those governments concerned to whom this cease-fire committee would be making recommendations."

Claims B.C.E. Net Revenue Below Normal

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP).—A Toronto investment expert told the Public Utilities Commission Monday there has not been sufficient increase in British Columbia Electric's net revenue to make the company "an attractive proposition to investors."

Courtland Elliott was testifying on behalf of the company at the public hearing on the B.C.E. application to increase its rate of allowed return on investment from 5.8 to 7.5 per cent of its depreciated property value.

Mr. Elliott showed tables of figures to illustrate that while the company's property account had increased 72.81 per cent between 1946 and 1950 and its net property account had increased 105.55 per cent and the number of kilowatt hours sold had increased 75.66 per cent in the same time, the percentage increase in electric revenue had been only 55.07 per cent.

"In my opinion," Mr. Elliott said, "there has not been a sufficient increase in net revenue to make this company an attractive proposition to investors."

He said the B.C.E. was outstanding among Canadian companies because of its "phenomenal growth" in the post-war years. It had an appeal for investors on this basis.

Race Wire Closed Down In October

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP)—A contract submitted as evidence Monday showed that the racing wire to Vancouver, held by police to be the key to city bookmaking, closed down Oct. 31.

The contract was submitted at the bookmaking conspiracy preliminary hearing of 34 persons by Bertram F. Abram, commercial representative here for the Northwest Telephone Co.

Most of Monday's evidence was of a semi-technical nature, with the battery of nine defense lawyers doing very little questioning of witnesses.

Some 17 witnesses were excused Monday by Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes, but warned to be on hand Wednesday and Thursday.

Report Ransom Notes From Reds

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Nov. 27 (Reuters)—Several Chinese residents here have reported threats from Chinese Communists to kill their relatives in China unless they pay substantial ransoms to agents in Hong Kong.

They said the Communists likely have located them through remittances sent from New Zealand.

One Chinese market-gardener said he had already paid two demands and now was faced with a third.

WOULD PAY FOR POWER STOLEN 34 YEARS AGO

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Nov. 27 (AP)—A Colorado man Monday offered to pay for electrical power he obtained 34 years ago by tapping a company's lines.

In a letter received by the Chamber of Commerce, the unidentified man said he tapped the Kansas Gas and Electric Company lines for "possibly four months." He has since "repented his sins and seeks to rectify the mistakes" of his younger days, he wrote.

The company said it would bill the man to satisfy his conscience.

Duncan Miners Guilty Of Assault Charge

DUNCAN — After a day-long trial in county court Monday, Robert Fiddler and John Machette, miners employed at Twin "J" Mines, were found guilty of assault occasioning bodily harm and each fined $250 with option of three months in jail.

Informant was Edwin Schmidt, following a fracas at the home of Isidore Blanchard, Duncan, on October 7.

Schmidt claimed he had been robbed of $30 after being badly beaten by accused. Evidence was that the fracas broke out after a card game and that there was considerable drinking preceding the game.

Const. Thomas Crease, R.C.M.P., told of being called to the Blanchard home at 3.55 a.m. and finding its three rooms smeared with blood and littered with broken furniture, and Blanchard lying on the floor suffering from cuts and bruises.

In sentencing accused Judge L. A. Hanna said that the crown had failed to connect them with the actual theft, as others were in the house and there was grave doubt, but there was no doubt as to the accused having assaulted causing bodily harm. They were acquitted of the charge of assault with intent to rob.

Australia Cuts Exports Of Wheat

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 27 (AP)—A reliable source said Monday night Australia has informed Egypt she will get no wheat from Australia until the British-Egyptian dispute is settled.

He said this is because of lower Australian wheat production.

Capsule Talk Aids 16 Leap From Plane

Veteran Parachuter Radios Instruction

FORT WORTH, Tex. Nov. 27 (UP)—Sixteen crewmen aboard a crippled B-36 parachuted to safety after a veteran parachute jumper delivered an emergency lecture by radio instructing them how to abandon the giant bomber.

The airmen sat in the apparently-doomed craft and listened to the capsule course on parachuting delivered Monday by an ex-paratrooper, Sgt. Gladstone Grigsby, a negro, from the Carswell air force control tower. Grigsby's home is at Fort Worth.

At the end of the lecture, the crewmen leaped from the plane and landed without incident within a two-mile radius—except for S.-Sgt. William I. Roten who hung helpless in a pecan tree for 30 minutes before he was cut loose.

Two crew members remained with Capt. Clarence F. Horton of San Antonio, Tex., when he brought the big ship in for the delicate landing in a heavy rainstorm.

Horton said mechanical "scanners" aboard the plane detected a failure of the "position arm pin" on his left wheel shortly after the takeoff from the base. The ship was on a routine training mission.

One tire on the wheel was turning opposite from the other, causing them to scrape together.

"We didn't try to get the gear up then, but called the tower and told them we believed we had an emergency," Horton said.

For six hours the bomber circled the Fort Worth area trying to remedy the failure on instructions radioed to the plane by Col. Thomas P. Gerrity, commander of the 11th Bomb Wing.

When all efforts failed, Gerrity gave directions that the crew abandon the plane.

Charges Taft Spent Fortune On 1950 Vote

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (UP).—Ohio State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson charged today that Sen. Robert A. Taft's supporters spent $5,000,000 to defeat him (Ferguson) in the 1950 senatorial campaign and "cheated" the government out of tax revenue.

Ferguson said in testimony prepared for the Senate elections subcommittee that such expenditures make it "very obvious that a poor man or even a person of moderate means cannot afford to run for high public office."

"When approximately $5,000,000 can be spent on behalf of one candidate," he said, "the principles of our democratic system and our American way of life become hopelessly abandoned.

"Large companies ran newspaper advertising for Taft over their names and charged the cost to newspaper advertising accounts. . . . This sort of thing amounted to the government subsidizing part of Taft's campaign. Under our present laws, advertising is considered an operation expense, and is deductible for tax purposes. The government was actually cheated out of tax money that was used for a political candidate."

Taft's campaign committees reported expenditures of slightly more than $500,000. The Ohio Republican conceded, however, that contributions to his campaign from other G.O.P. committees may have upped this total by another $100,000 to $200,000.

Planners Ruffled

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP)—West Vancouver's six-man town planning commission attempted to resign Monday night in protest of Reeve Howard Fletcher's statement that the group needed "new blood" to keep up with the times.

However, council staved off a formal resignation by moving that the T.P.C. letter of resignation be withdrawn "with our humble apologies."

Canadian scientist Joseph B. Reid shown with daughter, Jane, 2, en route to India.

Canadian Scientist Here On Way To U.N. Position

A brilliant, young Canadian scientist—Joseph B. Reid—was in Victoria today visiting his parents before starting off for India to set up a national scientific documentation centre at New Delhi.

Reid, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Andrew D. Reid of 3939 La Salle, is scheduled to leave here Dec. 4 with his English-born wife, Marjorie, and their three children, bound for India via Yokohama and Calcutta.

Reid, native of Danville, Que., will head a three-man United Nations' Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization team in setting up the Indian project.

A Rhodes scholar from Canada, Reid has been with UNESCO since March, 1947, holding the position of program specialist of scientific literature, department of natural sciences.

He met his wife, Marjorie Young, in England. Their children are Mary, nine; Elizabeth, six; and Jane, almost three.

Young as she is, Jane has been a trans-Atlantic voyager no less than three times. She was born in France.

The Reids decided to take the long way—20,000 miles—from Paris to New Delhi, so they could visit Canada and Reid's parents. Rev. Reid is the retired pastor of Centennial United Church here.

Reid explained the need for the Indian documentation centre, and similar centres in other parts of the world.

"There are some 25,000 to 50,000 scientific periodicals today," he said. "Some 5,000 of them are essential for top-level scientific research. This is more than any university can hope to have in its library. By setting up copies of documents on microfilms and having centres for them, they can be made available whenever necessary."

Reid expects the Indian project will take a year or more. When it is over he and his family will return to Paris where he will again take up his UNESCO position.

The young scientist has had extensive training for his India task. His early education was at Sydney, N.S. He took his undergraduate studies at the University of Manitoba, was named Manitoba Rhodes scholar in 1935 and continued his studies at Oxford.

Trustees Shift In Saanich Area

Re-allocation of trustees in School District 63 has given Central Saanich two and lost Saanich one.

Previously, Saanich had three trustees, and four represented unorganized territory. The change now gives Saanich two and the unorganized territory three.

The change was made necessary by the incorporation of Central Saanich.

CUBS, SCOUTS AFIELD

Expanding Organization Maintains Busy Schedule

By FREEMAN KING
Scout Commissioner

The Gorge Vale Cub Pack has been treated to two good picture shows during the past week; one was shown by A. Lincon of the district field day and rally held last June in Macdonald Park, and the other was by courtesy of the P.O.'s of H.M.C.S. Malahat, who had the boys over to their "ship" Sunday afternoon.

Scouter Wes Austin took the troop out to Camp Barnard for the week-end, and in spite of the very heavy rain and storm all enjoyed it.

On Friday evening the Belmont Scout Group received its charter from E. A. Estlin, district commissioner, who congratulated the boys on their progress under Scouter E. Meads.

Two packs of the Lions' Own group were shown pictures of the American jamboree that was held at Valley Forge last year and showed the camp which held nearly 40,000 boys. Jim Scout, executive commissioner from Calgary, brought them up with him on his holidays.

A number of the Scouters went to the Aged Men's home on Cadboro Bay Road on Monday and put on a sing-song.

At the regular monthly meeting of the district council, held Thursday, figures were given for the district registration for the year. There are now 1,085 cubs, 473 scouts, 24 rover scouts and 138 leaders, an increase of 209 over last year. The district is now 100 per cent registered.

Plans were also made to hold the annual meeting and dinner at the Monterey on Jan. 23, and some special features will be held then.

Don Wagg, a member of the committee, is working on plans to form an "Old Scouts Guild," which is open to any ex-scouter or scouter or member of group committees. This guild is growing in numbers in England and other parts of the world.

Plans are also under way for a training course for scoutmasters to take place in January and February. Anyone interested in taking this leader course may get in touch with district headquarters, 1034 Johnson Street.

Mother, Daughter Found Murdered

DETROIT, Nov. 27 (AP).—A mother and her 11-year-old daughter were found slain in their home Monday night. Their throats had been cut. They were Mrs. Daisy Maurer, 44, and her daughter, Janet. Police said the bodies were found in a bedroom by the husband and father, Lawrence Maurer, 46, when he returned home from work.

Cugat Confides Love Plans

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (UP).—Rhumba king Xavier Cugat confided today that he and his brown-eyed sweetheart, Abbe Lane, probably will honeymoon "somewhere in Spain" next summer, but added he was concerned over a violent long-distance attachment his beloved had taken to Barcelona bullfighter Mario Cabre.

The Latin-American band leader revealed Miss Lane had never met Spain's number-one toreador, who all but won the heart of screen siren Ava Gardner. Cugat said he himself spurred her interest in Cabre by accident.

"In preparation for the trip, I am telling her all about the toreadors and picadors," he said. "She wanted some books and pictures on the subject. Now she's wild to see them in person, especially Mario."

WHY BLAME ME?

BECAUSE you are actually the person who sets the price you pay for automobile insurance . . . that is, you and every other driver in your area.

There is neither mystery nor magic in the setting of automobile insurance costs. These costs are based on the amount paid out in claims in the different rating areas across the country.

If, during any period, losses are lighter than the earlier period on which the rates were based, your costs will go down. If accidents occur more frequently and bring about heavier losses, damages awarded become larger (as they have progressively done), then your costs must go up.

Every attempt is made as far as practicable to reward the good risk and penalize the poor one. That is why drivers under 25 are charged so much more for their automobile insurance. On the average about 14% of the people who drive motor cars are in this young age group . . . but they are involved in 28% of all fatal accidents.

Automobile insurance premiums are, in general, considerably higher now than they were a few years ago. That is because accidents are far more numerous these days—and each accident tends to be more costly. That means more and more money paid out in claims.

When the cost of accident claims goes down—through more careful driving—automobile insurance costs will go down and you will profit.

Remember too, when you drive carefully, you save more than money—you save lives. And the life you save may be your own.

Could it be that there was something sinister behind the sale of Grey Cup tickets this year . . . ? or is the burden of carrying high-priced imports on Western teams proving too high a financial liability . . . ? One Calgary newspaperman has suggested it won't be long before high-priced and top-calibre football in the West will be a thing of the past.

Soft-Spoken Lou Little Puts Blame On Prexies

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (UP)—Admitting that proselyting is here to stay, soft-spoken Lou Little's whispered words became a shout heard across the land today as he blamed the nation's college presidents for the current low estate of collegiate football.

Little, speaking as a coach whose Columbia teams for 22 years never have been touched by the breath of scandal, insisted that much of the gridiron scandal could be stamped out by a general rise in college admission requirements.

"The barometer of a football team is its admission requirements," Little asserted as he questioned last week's Washington meeting of 10 college presidents who attacked the easy courses offered at some schools.

"What I'd like to know," he asked, "is how those courses get on the college curriculum without the college presidents approving them? If they aren't qualified courses they shouldn't be there in the first place—and the president of the college should be the first one to know about such courses."

The man whose tattered Lions upset Stanford in the 1934 Rose Bowl game argued that college football players have plenty of study time if they really desire an education; that collegiate coaches would adhere to standards demanded by college presidents and that scholarships should be taken completely out of the hands of the athletic department and handled on a strict academic basis.

"One of the big troubles now is that if a boy can't make the grade at one school, he knows he can always go somewhere else and pass the scholastic requirements," he charged. "If we all had the same admission requirements it would do away with many abuses.

When You Hit Him, Hit Him Hard

When you are playing for the Howard Russell Cup, you make every tackle as if it was the last one you were going to make on this earth. That seems to be the motto Oak Bay and Vic High schools are sticking to as defensive play of the smashing type has forced the first two games into ties. Bob Cross of Oak Bay thought he was away for a try in the early moments of Monday's game but Click Clarke of Vic High had other ideas and laid the ball carrier low with a crushing tackle. Five minutes later both players were obscured by mud. The game finished in a 3-3 deadlock. Deciding contest will be held Friday.

This Isn't Gospel, But Cats May Get Help Soon

General manager Fred Hutchison of the Cougars hockey club is making no statements concerning possible player help for the club until such help is signed, sealed and delivery guaranteed.

He admitted as much Monday when confronted with a Canadian Press dispatch from Vancouver which stated the Cougars had made overtures to the Canucks for forward Bob Ballance and ex-defenseman Larry Reardon.

"You can say that Vancouver is the only one of nine or 10 clubs with whom we have been in contact during the past 72 hours," he said.

Hutchinson also admitted there was a possibility he would fly to Vancouver ahead of the team today to confer with Vancouver officials. Outside of that, he declined comment on the Vancouver story.

However, regardless of the success or failure of current negotiations, the Cougars will be strengthened for the clash with the Canucks tonight by the return of centre Reg Abbott.

Out of action for the past three weeks with a shoulder separation, Abbott will in all probability resume his regular place between Andy Hebenton and Bob Frampton with Eddie Dorohoy pivoting Jack McIntyre and Bob Bowness.

This move will enable Leon Bouchard to resume his defensive duties, giving the Cats four rearguards for the first time in weeks.

Goalie Jerry Cotnoir will also strip for the game, although it is problematical if he will see action. It will be Cotnoir's first appearance in uniform this year.

Golf Series Proposed

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP).—An international golf series between the United States and Canada is being discussed at the annual convention of the Professional Golfers Association of America.

The rivalry, patterned after the British-U.S. Ryder Cup matches but on a four-ball basis rather than a two-ball Scotch foursome, was proposed yesterday by John J. Hopkins of New York and Montreal.

His offer was presented by Ken Murray, Canadian P.G.A. president.

Hopkins is an honorary director of the Canadian P.G.A. He is president of an electric boat company which recently was awarded a government contract to build an atomic submarine.

Hopkins offered to give each member of the two teams $500 for each annual match and provide transportation to the site of the tournament. He offered to underwrite costs for three consecutive years.

Each team would be made up of 10 players. Hopkins said that Canada would reserve the right to draft players from anywhere in the British Empire.

The purpose of the series, Hopkins said, would be to further "good fellowship, better understanding and high level sporting relationships between Canada and the United States."

HEATH TO PILOT SEALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27 (UP)—Happy Tommy Heath, an obscure diamond personality on the west coast, though a success at Minneapolis, drove toward San Francisco today to sign a two-year contract for the "best baseball job in the world."

Heath, 38, agreed Monday to manage the San Francisco Seals during the 1952-53 Pacific Coast League seasons. A former second-string catcher with the St. Louis Browns, Heath came to terms with Seals' owner Paul I. Fagan during a telephone conversation.

Arrows Rally To Drub Taxi Girls

Arrow Furniture poured 29 points through the hoop in the last half while holding C. & C. Taxi to six in registering a 45-25 victory in an intermediate B girls' exhibition basketball game at Vic High gym Monday night.

The taxi girls had looked like winners in the middle of the first half but Arrows came back to slice the losers' margin to 19-16 at the breather.

In the third quarter, Chris Boyd took over and potted eight points to start Arrows off to their win.

MIXED FRAY

Tillicum midget boys proved their male superiority as they took their exhibition tilt from Bomberette junior girls, 34-28.

In the third game of the card, Mary Casilio's A and B girls' teams hooked up in what must be a near record for low scoring games.

The A team could manage only one field goal and a pair of free shots and bowed to the B's 7-4.

Line-ups follow:

Mary Casilio's A team—G. Wright, M. Prentis, G. Winterburn 2, B. Brabiner 1, P. Winterburn, F. Miller 1, I. Larson, B. Allan, J. Cooper. Total—4.

Mary Casilio's B team—G. McNab 2, M. Dawson, J. Brown, V. Hutton, S. Carlson, M. Davies, D. McInnis, L. McNab 1, A. Skeats 4. Total—7.

Tillicums—Smith 6, Bishop 6, Landsdale 6, Smele, Large 4, Fryer 10, Shaw 2, Andrew. Total—34.

Bomberettes—M. Johnson 4, Copas 7, Jay 2, Winter, L. Snider 2, Sinclair 5, B. Johnson, Bates 8, Pearce, Oldald. Total—28.

C. & C. Taxi—B. Koski 5, Ross 6, V. Hearn 5, G. Koski 4, Sprinkling, Blair 5, Moss, Kalk. Total—25.

Arrow Furniture—Boyd 10, Wright 12, Gladson 2, Hutton 2, J. Johnson 15, Bombadier 2, McDonald 2, B. Hearn. Total—45.

Vic High, Oak Bay In Second Straight Draw

By TED WHAN

A battle in a sea of mud. That about sums up the second of the three-game Howard Russell Cup series perfectly. The players had all the fight of the first contest but also had to contend with the elements as the V.H.S. field was turned to mire Monday after the heavy week-end rain.

None of the keen competition which was present in the first game was lacking as the game ended in another draw—this time 3-3. The first ended 0-0.

Oak Bay kicked off and were successful in keeping the ball in the Fernwood end during early moments of the game. After several Vic High fumbles the Bays worked the ball down to the Vic High one-yard line where they forced a line out. From the line out the ball bounced into the V.H.S. try zone. It slipped from two Vic High players' hands and was pounced upon by Oak Bay captain Ron Hurley. Because of the difficult angle and the soggy ball the convert was unsuccessful.

This three points seemed to instill in the V.H.S. rep squad a tremendous volley of drive and fight as the scrum kept driving on the ball and putting a damper on further Oak Bay attempts.

BAYS HOLD

The Bays kept a check on this drive until near the end of the second half when Vic High's three line got rolling. After several attempts which were put to an end by the slippery ball and the Bays' determined tackling, the Vic High three line each took out their man.

After throwing a "dummy" which was partially successful Pete Ash was tackled about two yards from the Bays' line, but putting forth a last tremendous effort he carried himself, his tackler and the ball across the line for Vic High's marker. Again the spongy ball was not converted and the score remained 3-3.

HURLEY STARRY

Playing outstanding games for the Oak Bay squad were Ron Hurley, who turned in a smart performance at scrum half, and inside three quarters Jerry Rovers, who made many fine runs throughout the game. Fullback Miller also proved valuable, making many long kicks.

SHIELDS OUTSTANDING

For Vic High, powerhouse Jack Shields, who is playing a terrific series and who, by the end of Wednesday's game was completely covered with mud, stopped many of Oak Bay's runs and kicks before they could get started by his fearless tackling. Other Vic High scrum stalwarts were Jack Ward, Jerry Collinson and Tom Tucker.

At the end of the game it was hard to distinguish Vic High from Oak Bay as the Bays' usual green and white sweaters had turned brown from the mud.

Third and deciding game is scheduled for Friday at Windsor park.

A large crowd of students from both schools, along with a number of adult rugby fans, braved the elements to witness the hard-fought contest.

Line-ups:

Oak Bay—Miller, Cross, Unwin, Rovers, Creighton, Simpson, Hurley, Dicks, Sharpe, McKenzie, Henslowe, Wright, Price, Cox, Clarke.

Victoria High—Whan, Ash, Skillings, Bishop Clarke, Donahue, Kennett, Parker, Thow, Tucker, Shearing, Ward, Pierce, Collinson, Shields.

CAMPBELL SAYS OVERTIME UP TO LEAGUE GOVERNORS

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (CP).—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Monday any question of establishing overtime play to break tie games must be dealt with by the league's governors.

Campbell, back in town after a week-end on the road, was commenting on a request by general manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins last Friday that a telegraphic vote be taken on starting sudden-death overtime play not to exceed 10 minutes.

Campbell said anything so important in rule changes must be dealt with by a governors' meeting.

RUSSELL CUP MUD

What? No Tarpaulin!

By DENNY BOYD

Mud? You never saw anything like it. After the torrential downpour had innundated the playing fields of Victoria, Monday, the rugby pitch at Victoria High School was turned into a bog with the consistency of thick, gooey, whipped cream.

It did not stop the rugby teams of Vic High and Oak Bay, however. With the Russell Cup in the offing, they would have played the game in the middle of Beaver Lake.

The players, chilled by a windswept rain, were cautious when they first went on the field. But as soon as they had been dumped on their britches once they forgot their timidness and rolled around in the muck as if they enjoyed it.

The game featured nearly everything but the thing that most of the spectators were waiting for never happened. In spite of the fervent wishes of all who saw the game, referee Campbell Forbes, attired in gleaming white shorts and sweatshirt, did not get a speck of mud on his clothes.

With the ball coated with mud, three-quarter runs were necessarily absent. Conversions on both tries were a futile joke as the kickers were up against a situation almost as bad as trying to kick a boiled cabbage through a key-hole.

At half time, the old grads of both schools were moved to loud cries of "Never like this when I was at school." The reason for the muttering was that smartly attired female cheer leaders carried trays of sliced oranges out to the gladiators during the intermission. The oranges and the adoring looks of the girls seemed to do a lot to perk up the spirits of the tired and mud-soaked players.

Although there is no cup for the most valuable player in the series, it would seem that one should be given to Ron Hurley, captain and scrum half of the defending champion Oak Bay team.

About half the size of a tadpole, Hurley has been sparking the Bays, a good 15 pounds lighter than Vic High man for man. An excellent ball handler and kicker, Hurley showed the crowd that he was also a defensive player in Monday's game. Ted Whan, fleet fullback of Vic High, broke up the right sideline and appeared to be on his way when he was flattened by a crushing tackle thrown by Hurley.

For Vic High, the nominations would go to Click Clark for his untiring hustle and to Jack Shields for his stone-wall defensive play.

Sport Week

By JOHN LARDNER

You've heard that Jacob (Buddy) Baer wrestles a bull toward the end of "Quo Vadis," the new motion-picture epic. Spectators are advised to set their alarm clocks so as to catch this scene. Coming, as it does, three hours after the beginning of the picture, when both Baer and the dogie were much younger, it represents their last, as well as their first, meeting. This is especially true of the loser, who is carried offstage by four early Roman hamburger salesmen after the bout.

Buddy and the bull fight in a bloody arena, right in front of a beautiful girl who is tied to a stake in row A, ringside ($25, including tax).

Lardner

Apparently—I missed some of the earlier plot background—both of them have been in love with her for many years, and this is the showdown. The costuming indicates that Roman fights were geared for television. Baer wears a white robe, and a blue hair rinse. The bull is all in black.

When Bud breaks the animal's neck — thus freeing the girl from what would probably have been an embarrassing match socially—the late returns from California suddenly come in, revealing that Wilson has been elected in the nick of time and Nero is through. Wilson is played by Robert Taylor.

I admit that my information on "Quo Vadis" is sketchy. I was concentrating mostly, as any old fight writer would, on my memories of the Baer family, a troupe of part-time fighters and full-time actors who have been with us since—well, as a troupe, since 1934.

He Was Always Tossing The Bull

It was late in that year that I first saw Jacob, or Buddy, the junior member, fight, in Chicago. I remember his brother Max describing the boy the day before the bout.

"This is a hell of a kid," said Max, sentimentally. "His feet are bigger than Primo Carnera's."

The next night, Buddy knocked out somebody named Frank Ketter in the first round. Both he and Max seemed surprised and delighted. The Baers were not a very aggressive pair—though Max could fake a tolerable snarl—and they always seemed surprised when they licked people. People, I said; not bulls.

The Baers (this is significant in connection with Buddy's fight in "Quo Vadis") had the Indian sign on cattle, right from the start. They worked as boys in their father's slaughterhouse in Livermore, Calif. Max used to estimate that he had reduced more steers to sirloin, with a croquet mallet, than any one west of Chicago. The ruminant never lived who could scare a Baer.

Just A Natural Born Actor

People were something else again; those, Max and Buddy have always been happier singing or talking to than fighting. Max starred in a picture once, a pretty good one, too, called "The Prizefighter and the Lady." Buddy, who owns a pleasant set of pipes, has sung in night clubs. He does not sing in "Quo Vadis," not even a couple of bars of "Till the Cows Come Home." He is type-cast. The fellow in the story who steals the girl from the handsome young steer is named Ursus, which is early-Italian for Baer.

When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer went looking for somebody of that family, they were told that there were two Ursuses, or Ursi, available. "Get Jake," was the tip. "He's bigger." So they got Jake.

This business of saving a girl, as Buddy does in the picture, calls to mind an old frustration in the Baer family, which I'm glad has now been relieved. In 1938, Max and Buddy were training together in a New Jersey town, Max to fight Tommy Farr, Jacob to meet Gunnar Barlund (who treated him as no Roman bull ever did).

Not Even One Teensy-Weensy Girl

The newspapers were quiet about the project, so the camp press agent decided to stimulate some news. He planned to have one of the Baers save a girl from drowning, in the local lake, in time for the late afternoon editions. The mayor of the town intervened.

"Our lake is two feet deep," he said. "No one has ever drowned in it. It would give the town a black eye if someone did."

"Just one girl?" pleaded the press agent. "Just one before lunch?"

"No dice," said the mayor firmly.

The score on girls has now been adjusted, thanks to "Quo Vadis" (which means "Where are you going?"; the question might well be "Why?").

It's Still Eddie, Ollie In P.C.H.L. Point Battle

The Pacific Coast Hockey League individual scoring race has reverted back to a family affair one more.

Ollie Dorohoy of New Westminster garnered one assist over the week-end to climb into a first-place tie with brother Ed of Victoria. Both contestants of the scoring crown have 34 points, five better than third place Joe Bell of Seattle Ironmen.

Victoria was idle over the week-end, preventing Eddie Dorohoy from adding to his total.

Browning Hits For 16 Points

Who is going to stop Bayview Woodworkers?

The carpenters, formerly known as Orphans, rang up their ninth straight Saanich and Suburban Basketball League win Monday night by trouncing Sooke, 41-25.

To make matters worse for other clubs in the league, Bayview's came up with another new player in the person of Archie Browning, who is known to have played a little lacrosse for Shamrocks.

Playing his first game along side of boxla mates Whitey Severson and Bob Monaghan, Browning led all the scorers with 16 points.

Royals Edge Maroon Six

There was little choice for comparison at the arena Monday night as two minor hockey games resulted in a tie and a one-goal victory.

Capitals tied Senators 3-3 in the feature juvenile game, while Royals nipped Maroons 7-6 in the opener.

Maroons were led by Ron Midgely who scored a hat trick, while John Makowski and Jack Elliott accounted for two Royal goals each.

Team Fails To Reflect League Statistics

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (CP).—Two Montreal Canadiens remain close as book pages atop the National Hockey League's individual scoring list, but the script tells a different story for the team.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach have completed more than a month in a first-place deadlock and continue to lead in the sniping and assists divisions, respectively.

The Habitants, however, are not doing so well, precariously dangling in third position.

Richard and Lach picked up two goals and two assists apiece last week to bring their total to 20 points. Richard has scored the highest number of goals—13.

Lach remains Richard's greatest helper, having set up the most plays in the league this season. His 16 assists are six better than the total of Sid Abel, veteran Detroit Red Wings captain.

ROLLINS HIGH

Toronto's Al Rollins leads the goal-tenders. In 20 games he has allowed 32 pucks past him for a 1.60 goals-against average. Close behind him is Detroit's Terry Sawchuk with a 1.85 average. Sawchuk has scored more shutouts than any other netminder—four.

Boston's Gus Kyle and New York's Jack Evans are the most penalized players with 43 minutes called against them. Montreal's 215 minutes in penalties are 26 higher than Toronto's total, while Rangers play the most gentlemanly, having lost only 153 minutes for infractions.

MARION GETS TWO OFFERS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 27 (AP)—Ousted Friday as manager of St. Louis Cardinals, Marty Marion was wavering today between offers made him by Boston Braves and St. Louis Browns.

Both the Braves and Browns desperately need a shortstop, and both clubs were understood to have made combination player-coach bids to Marion, with the Braves dangling a $10,000 bonus for signing.

"I'm being offered more than I am worth, but it is a great opportunity, and I'm going to take my time and figure out things carefully," Marion said.

J.B.A.A. Star To Live On Mainland

Local rowing and rugby circles will lose a staunch supporter with the departure of Rex Askey for Vancouver within the next few days. An employee of the King's Printer for the past 25 years, Askey is taking his family to the mainland city where he will enter a commercial printing firm.

Few J.B.A.A. regattas in the last two decades were complete without Askey, who rowed in championship fours at numerous N.P.A.A.O. meets and later turned his attention to coaching younger members. In 1932 he made and presented to the club a lapstreak practice single that provided the first acquaintance with rowing for many a novice oarsman.

Askey also featured in early J.B.A.A. senior rugby teams. Under his coaching the club's "B" teams won many championships in the thirties.

His participating days are over, Askey says, but he adds: "I probably won't be able to resist looking in on the Vancouver Rowing Club once I get there."

TIME OUT! By Jeff Keate

"It's sure interesting to watch her bowl. By the way, did you ever notice whether she knocks down any pins?"

Then $17.00 an ounce!

Ninety-three years ago, Queen's University, Kingston, gave a medal to its first graduate in chemistry. The medal was made of aluminum—which then cost $17.00 an ounce.

Today aluminum costs only slightly over one cent an ounce.

The price has been brought down by mass production in huge plants using the electrolytic process discovered twenty-eight years after the Queen's medal was presented.

By developing some of Canada's waterpower, previously running to waste, Alcan has succeeded in making this country the world's most efficient producer of aluminum, giving employment to many thousands of Canadians and through exports of "packaged power" aiding Canadians in acquiring the imports needed here. Rematch Set Between Young Fisticuffers

Boxing fans who witnessed the tree-round brawl between navy's Young Bruneau and Esquimalt's Bert Wilkinson last week will be pleased to hear that the two spirited leather tossers have been rematched for Dec 6 at Victoria Ballroom.

Their first meeting was a fight that fans will remember for years to come. Wilkinson, comparative stranger to the local fight game, almost turned in a sensational upset over the navy cutie but lost on a decision that left the majority of fans in a rage.

The Bruneau-Wilkinson scrap will be the feature bout of a challenge card presented jointly by St. Louis College and Esquimalt boxing clubs. Object of the challenge is the Knowles Memorial Trophy, presented by Jack Patterson and currently held by Esquimalt.

Another feature bout will match James Bay's impressive Paul Calvey with Fred Curtis of St. Louis College. Curtis will be out to atone for the walloping that Calvey administered to Curtis' clubmate Len Thomas in the last card.

It is hoped that strong representation will be received from the Royal Canadian Navy.

Dennis Day No Dim-Witted Character As Portrayed

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 27 (AP)—Eugene Denis McNulty, better known as Dennis Day, portrays a dim-witted character on the Jack Benny radio show. If Day is dumb, many another show business personality would like to have the same brand of ignorance.

Here are some examples of Day's dumbness:

After years of biding his time, he landed himself a fat movie contract with 20th Century-Fox and is the only Fox player who has television rights.

He just signed a TV contract with NBC after bidding by that network and CBS.

Day, who talks like a normal human being and not the breathless, half-baked character he plays on the radio, indicated that he doesn't believe in rushing into things. He has had many movie offers but not until a couple of years ago did he sign up for one picture a year at Fox. The deal kept him a free agent for TV, while most other movie contract players were prohibited from the new medium.

MAY QUIT RADIO

The tenor is at present working in "The Girl Next Door" and will play a whimsical axe murderer in his next film. He has another film to follow that one, and so his TV show may not make its debut until the fall of 1952.

Day indicated that he would concentrate on getting good writing for his TV show. "The trouble with a lot of the writing on TV today is that the writers are still thinking in terms of radio technique. Fortunately there are a lot of new young writers coming who realize that TV depends on sight, not gags."

His own radio program is off the air and he said he might be giving up radio altogether.

Dairymen Seeking New Price Raise

Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association has asked for another hearing before the B.C. Milk Board in a letter mailed to chairman E. C. Carr this morning.

An association spokesman said a further increase in the price paid producers will be sought.

"We have made no request for a specific increase," he said. "The board knows our situation. At this hearing we will simply renew our request."

Producers now are paid $5.90 per 100 pounds of milk.

Police Officers Found Negligent

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP)—Disciplinary action will be taken against police officers who did not notify a man of his son's death, although they knew the dead man's identity, Mayor Fred Hume said Monday night.

The father said he was not advised of the death until June 29, after the body had been cremated. He learned of the death from the official administrator.

The commission meeting was called by Mayor Hume after William C. Down of suburban Burnaby accused the police of "gross negligence" in not contacting him.

Down's son—28-year-old David Courtenay Down — was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital June 13.

LONDON (CP) — Two carrier pigeons flew to London from a home for blind babies in Sussex, carrying messages expressing hope for a speedy and complete recovery of King George from illness.

St. Luke's Players started off their 1951-1952 season in spirited style Monday night. The play is one of the English stage's most successful farces of recent times and seemed an unusually good choice for this group.

Ably directed by Flora Nicholson, it kept a capacity audience in St. Luke's parish hall happily following a tangled skein of hilariously improbable events.

As the vicar who married an actress, and as the actress, Don Green and Margaret Martin carried out convincing performances that were well-timed and sparkling. Charles Gibson is the clergyman who unfortunately arrives a day too soon for the Harvest Home service; his was a really superb performance, smooth, polished and sure.

The entire cast appear competent and well rehearsed, and while there was some slowness of pace at first, this soon picked up and developed into what came close to being the ideal farce tempo.

This was an evening of genuine entertainment of a breezy and unpretentious kind. For those who enjoy their theatre fast, funny and packed with action, the trip out to Cedar Hill Crossroad is well worth while.

The play will be repeated tonight and Thursday. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Prisoner's Note Pleaded Defense

May Spark Minnie's Conviction Appeal; Brother Brings 'Evidence' To Times

By ROY THORSEN

There is a strong likelihood that Edward J. Minnie, 22, of 816 Mason, may appeal the jail term imposed against him last week for shopbreaking and theft.

He was convicted by Magistrate H. C. Hall on a charge of breaking into and robbing Jack's Auto Radio Shop, 773 Pandora, on or about Nov. 9. He received a two-year-less-one-day sentence, with a recommendation that he be considered for closed Borstal School.

Minnie's brother, Howard Stanley Minnie, today handed over to the Victoria Daily Times a signed statement purported to have been made by Eric A. Robb, who pleaded guilty to the same charge upon which Minnie was convicted.

The brother indicated the statement would be the basis for the appeal.

Howard Minnie said he received the penciled statement from his brother when he visited him at the city jail. The convicted man was not represented by counsel at the trial.

The message, addressed to the Editor of the Times, reads:

"I, Eric A. Robb, swear that on Nov. 9 James Minnie was not with the party—which included Douglas Turner and myself. When the premises of Jack's Auto Radio store were broken into, too, as he was elsewhere as his witnesses testified in court. And is therefore innocent of the crime to which he has been sentenced.

"Signed, Eric A. Robb."

During Minnie's trial Turner, of 1325 Lang, said both Minnie and Robb were in on the break-in. Robb testified that only Turner was with him on the job.

Robb is being screened for admission to Borstal School. Turner received a suspended sentenced.

OAK BAY DEAF

Three Sirens Inadequate Raid Warning

Victoria's three air-raid warning sirens are "totally inadequate" to handle an emergency.

Civil defense co-ordinator Leonard Hatcher said today his preliminary spot-check Monday showed that some people living almost on top of the sirens failed to hear the test Sunday.

Oak Bay was the weakest link in the chain.

"This area couldn't possibly be covered by the three sirens," said Mr. Hatcher.

He believes that when seven sirens now on order arrive here future tests will be more effective. Plans call for the sirens to be installed in a circle ringing the four-mile area.

Canadian made from an English patent, they are the same as those used in England during the war.

Big Wage Boost Board-Approved

B.C. Electric line and maintenance men have won most of the issues which were submitted during September and October to a three-man conciliation board.

The board, in a unanimous report, has recommended that the men be given a 22 per cent wage increase. It is believed to be one of the biggest wage boosts offered by any conciliation board in the country. For most of the 650 men directly affected, it will mean an advance in their hourly rate of about 34 cents an hour.

Close to 100 Vancouver Island employees of the public utility firm are affected. A meeting is scheduled for Wednesday night in Victoria at which they will discuss the report in detail.

There is little doubt that the men will vote to accept the offer. The vote will be taken by their union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

Journeymen metermen, under the conciliation board's plan, will receive an extra 5 cents an hour besides the blanket 22 per cent boost. The board made this concession as a result of a union submission that the metermen's former scale was out of line.

The pay increase is to be retroactive to August 1, the board recommends, and the agreement should be for one year.

An official of B.C. Electric has estimated that to implement wage recommendations of the board will cost the company an extra $550,000 a year.

(The company only last week said it would be faced with an expense of $505,000 to provide a promised wage increase next year to its transportation service employees.)

While the conciliation board report deals with B.C. Electric linesmen only, its recommendations will form the basis of settlement between the union and the firm of Hume and Rumble.

Union agreements with the two companies have always been as nearly identical as possible. Hume and Rumble employ about 70 men on Vancouver Island.

Other major recommendations of the board report are:

1. That the company notify the union in advance should it contemplate making application for a change in power rates;

2. That the company provide cook-house facilities when three or more linesmen are being quartered in company huts;

3. That employees be given three weeks' annual paid holiday after ten years' service;

4. That employees be given nine statutory holidays a year.

Members of the conciliation board were all lawyers.

OUT OF COUNCIL, HAULS COAL

Veteran Cumberland Mayor Retiring After 26 Years

By DON INGHAM

When Mayor Alec Maxwell of Cumberland retires in December he will have set a B.C. record of 26 years consecutive service as mayor.

Prior to 1926 he was an alderman, and became mayor that year when he defeated C. J. Parnham. He will be a candidate for the one vacant seat on the council next month, and so far it appears he will be elected by acclamation.

Sole candidate for mayor of the coal and logging centre is Ald. Bill Henderson, close friend of Mayor Maxwell, and with almost as many years council service.

"They have been working together for years," the mayor's daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Graham, 3320 Aldridge Street, Saanich, said today. "I'm sure they will continue to do so. Dad has wanted Ald. Henderson to run for mayor for some years."

A tough, hardy Scot, the mayor came to Vancouver Island as a child, and has lived in Cumberland for 60 years. Although he is 70 years of age, he still drives his own delivery truck and shovels up to 24 tons of coal per day.

"The lanes in Cumberland are too narrow for a dump truck," he says, "so I do the job by hand."

Mayor Maxwell was always more interested in the financial business of the city rather than the social amenities of the mayoralty, and never wears a necktie.

The above picture of the mayor and Mrs. Maxwell, taken in Victoria during a convention, is one of the few in existence of the mayor in a cravat. He usually tries to dodge official functions, but if that is impossible he turns up in an open-necked sports shirt, and feels the affairs of the city have progressed just as well.

A tie, an occasion . . . Mayor Alec Maxwell of Cumberland and Mrs. Maxwell

Jubilee Wage Dispute Bogs

Conciliation Attempt Will Be Made On Long List Of Employee Demands

About 350 Royal Jubilee Hospital employees and hospital officials have failed to reach an agreement on a 1952 collective bargaining agreement.

The Labor Relations Board announced today W. T. McLaughlin, conciliation officer, has been named to try to bring the parties together.

They are unable to agree on the employee association's request for increased wages, cost of living bonus, 40-hour week, relief for holidays and sickness, and other amendments to the existing agreement covering certain terms and conditions of employment.

An association official refused to divulge the amount of the increase in wages being sought.

The L.R.B. also announced an across-the-board increase of 18 per cent for Chilliwack General Hospital employees had been recommended by a majority report of a conciliation board. A minority report recommended an 18 per cent boost for engineers and orderlies, and 12 per cent for general employees.

Another L.R.B. report said bargaining authority has been granted the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, local 1812, for employees of the B.C. Cement Co. employed as carpenters on new construction at Bamberton.

Hospitals Rush Wage Negotiation

British Columbia hospital employees' unions are frantically rushing wage negotiations to be completed by Nov. 30.

This is the deadline date set by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service. The service has ruled that all contracts must be completed by then so hospitals can prepare their 1952 budgets.

It has been roughly estimated that these wage boosts will be responsible for the majority of a $3,000,000 boost in the service's costs next year.

An idea of "things to come" in wage negotiations can be gathered from negotiations already completed. Unanimous awards handed down last week gave 80 employees of West Coast General Hospital a 16½-per-cent boost, and male employees 16½ per cent and female workers 12½ per cent at Nanaimo General Hospital. Fifteen Ladysmith Hospital employees will get 15 per cent more because of recent bargaining. It is expected Vancouver General Hospital employees will accept wage boosts of from 15 to 20 per cent.

Pay talks are still in progress at Vernon, Kamloops, Kelowna, Nelson, New Westminster, North Vancouver, Victoria, and other smaller units. All these negotiations must be completed by Friday under provisions of the B.C.H.I.S. policy.

Regimented, Dissatisfied, Milkmen Say

Independent milk producer-vendors are becoming "disheartened" by regimentation.

"We face restrictions in every aspect of the business," A. G. Lambrick, spokesman for the producer-vendors, said today.

"Our prices are set, butter-fat content is prescribed, we can't trust anyone 24 hours for the price of a bottle of milk without breaking the law, and competition is stifled."

"Now there is talk of starting milk deliveries at 8 a.m. instead of 6," Lambrick said.

Dairies should be allowed to make late deliveries if they wished, he said, but delivery time should be up to the individual firm or vendor concerned.

"We also feel consumers should have a voice in the situation," Lambrick said. "Council members should represent the people at all meetings concerning milk."

DAIRIES' SUPPORT

Two Victoria dairies have come out in support of a milk drivers' union appeal for a city regulation to require all milk deliveries to be made in the daylight.

The firms are Palm Dairies Ltd. and Island Farms Co-operative Association.

In letters submitted to City Council, the firms say daylight delivery regulations will make the milk delivery man's job more attractive.

'Lavender Hill Mob' Draws Fast Run On Sunday Show

"Loge seats all sold out," was the word from Miss Pat Meagher, in charge of ticket sales for the Solarium-Times premiers of "The Lavender Hill Mob" at the Odeon theatre next Sunday night at 9 p.m.

More than half the general admission tickets have also gone, Miss Meagher reported today, in urging patrons to "buy early" or face disappointment.

Tickets are available at the Times' uptown and downtown offices; the Odeon theatre; the Solarium office; the Solarium junior league members. Thursday, Friday and Saturday remaining tickets will be sold at Eaton's box office in the music centre.

All must be sold before Sunday.

Every cent taken in for the premiere will be turned over to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children, whose vice-president, Harold Husband, expressed gratitude today that Victorians were responding so enthusiastically to the ticket sale.

"The Lavender Hill Mob" was produced by Michael Balcon for J. Arthur Rank. Mr. Balcon established an international name with his previous comedy hits, "Tight Little Island" and "Kind Hearts and Coronets."

Mayhew Urges Korean Hostel For Canadians

Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew will urge Ottawa to locate a special hotel in Seoul, Korea, and set it aside as a hostel and convalescent home for Canadian troops.

On his return from Tokyo Monday, the minister said the hotel should be used by Canadians awaiting transportation on leave and those recently released from hospital.

Mayhew headed a Canadian delegation at the international fisheries conference in Tokyo. After the parley, he visited the Korean front and H.M.C.S. Cayuga and H.M.C.S. Sioux.

Since arriving home, the fisheries minister has been busy telephoning relatives of 100 crew members, giving them personal messages.

Judge Denies Sister's Claim To Big Estate

Specific performance of an agreement which she claimed had been signed by her late sister, Barbara Eloise Sinclair, and Dr. Archibald Sinclair, was denied 72-year-old spinster, Ora Belle Sinclair, in Supreme court today.

The agreement stated that on the death of Miss Sinclair's sister an entire family estate amounting to some $30,000 should be willed in her favor for looking after her aged mother at 138 Linden.

Miss B. E. Sinclair on her death on Jan. 13, 1950, willed that the residue of the estate be equally divided between two nieces, Margaret Kendall of St. Thomas, Ont. and Mary Margaret Campbell of Victoria.

The plaintiff claimed that her sister was senile when she made out the will and that the estate should have been left to her in accordance with the agreement.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane pointed out that the principal question in the civil action was whether the agreement was executed by Dr. A. C. Sinclair and his sister, Miss B. E. Sinclair.

"I came definitely to the conclusion that the signatures of Dr. A. D. Sinclair and of the deceased sister were not genuine signatures," said his Lordship.

In dismissing the action with cost, Mr. Justice Macfarlane pointed out that it was pressed on him that as the defense involved forgery or perjury or both, he must be satisfied beyond reasonable doubt.

"All I can say, and I say it sadly, is that I am," said His Lordship.

Thieves Dial Wrong Number

They got into Solomon Bricker's clothing store, 1227 Government, knocked the dial off the safe and pried the hinge pins off one side—but didn't break it open.

EIGHT ALARMS FOR ONE FIRE

Victoria Fire Department had a normal "high wind" morning with three chimney fires reported from Russell, Superior and Blanshard Streets.

Bystanders at the Blanshard Street fire, near Cormorant, made sure of service. A total of eight calls for the same blaze was recorded.

WANTS SUPPORT

Radio Joins Proudfoot's Oleo Fight

A new campaign for colored margarine launched by Mrs. Ricki Nickells, woman editor of radio station CKDA, has received the complete support of Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, M.L.A. for Victoria.

Proudfoot said he would support in the Legislature an amendment to the Oleomargarine Act to permit coloring of margarine to any degree of yellow.

Housewives in favor of coloring margarine are being asked by Mrs. Nickells to write to her stating that they are in favor of an amendment to the Oleomargarine Act.

"These will be turned over to Capt. Proudfoot," she said. "If we are to have colored margarine we will need the full support of the public. The Legislature must be shown that the people are in favor of colored margarine."

Street Names Irk Firemen

The names—Dale and Vale.

Saanich fire chief John Law wrote Saanich Council asking that one of the two names be changed because his departmetnt had difficulty with the rhyming streets when residents phoned in emergency calls.

Council will consider a change. But Coun. Leslie Passmore had an easier solution: "Turn the Dale street sign back to front and you have Elad Street."

NO SYMPHONY SHOW DEC. 10

Victoria Symphony Orchestra's December concert has been postponed a day, it is announced by symphony officials.

The concert originally scheduled for Dec. 10 will be held Dec. 11.

It was postponed because Concertmaster Clifford Evens, of Vancouver, who has a solo part in the program, could not be in Victoria Dec. 10.

RAISE FOR LAUNDRY

Standard Steam Laundry workers in Victoria will receive about 5 cents an hour extra as the result of a unanimous conciliation board award handed down this week.

Kenneth Leeming, 1337 Bond, has filed papers for a seat on the Greater Victoria School Board. He was proposed by H. W. Davey and seconded by Reg Harris.

HOSPITAL COSTS

Court Case Has Answer To Problem

A question which insurance companies have been pondering since compulsory hospital insurance was instituted has been settled by Mr. Justice Wilson.

The judge has ordered the owner and driver of a car to pay an injured passenger $429 for hospital expenses regardless of the fact that the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service paid the account.

Mr. Justice Wilson gave the question of liability for the hospital account special consideration.

The amount of the Vancouver General Hospital's account—$429—has been added by the judge to the $6,315 award made earlier this year to Frederick Flaherty, Vancouver. He was a passenger in a car owned by J. L. Hughes, garage proprietor, and driven by his son, Dennis, when it crashed into a Stanley Park tree.

The younger Hughes was blamed for the accident and the injuries suffered by Flaherty. Flaherty had paid his B.C.H.I.S. premiums so he did not have to pay his hospital bill.

Hughes' lawyer argued that the bill should not be included in the damage award, but the judge disagreed.

Said Mr. Justice Wilson: "The man who pays someone else to indemnify him against liability for hospital bills is still entitled to recover from the wrongdoer. He has arranged for a price to protect himself against one of the common liabilities of modern life. I think that the plaintiff (Flaherty) and not the wrongdoer (Hughes) is entitled to the benefit of that contract (B.C.H.I.S.)."

Street Attack Brings Charge

Sequel to the week-end beatings and wilful damage by roving gangs of youth were charges heard in police court today.

R. H. Johanson, 318 Rutledge, is alleged to have assaulted a 16-year-old boy, pleaded not guilty.

Charge arose after Robert Arnold Walker, 2212 Belmont, suffered injuries Saturday night.

Johanson was remanded to Dec. 4 for trial. His bail was set at $250.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he was dubious about the story told by a youth as to how a plate-glass window was broken.

Arthur W. Williams, 18, of 670 Battery, was charged with wilful damage.

He is alleged to have smashed a plate-glass window near Eaton's Broad Street entrance. Replacement cost is $110. The magistrate gave him a day to explain the "accident."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The easiest way to sliver an almond is to slit the nut into halves and then cut each half into 3 lengthwise slices.

Wool holds color longest . . . dyes penetrate to wool fibre's inner core for truer, more beautiful, more lasting color.

French toast is delicious when baked in a waffle iron. Serve with canned peach slices heated in maple syrup with a bit of butter added to it, too, for extra flavor.

A large fruit salad is perfect for a buffet supper party. We like to use sliced oranges, sliced avacado, grapefruit sections, apple wedges and halved fresh grapes. Make a colorful arrangement of the fruits in a large bowl, garnish with greens and top with French dressing.

The delicate sweetness of canned peaches and the tartness of cranberries are perfect together. Fill golden canned peach halves with canned cranberry sauce and broil until heated through. It's a wonderful dress-up touch for meat loaf or a chicken casserole.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Strong Abdominal Muscles Better In Looks And Service

Today's mystery is called "The Case of the Lazy Colon."

There are many factors which lead to constipation. I mentioned some of them yesterday. Few persons know anything about their intestinal tract except to be conscious that they have one when it gives them trouble.

Food waste should pass through the large intestine, or colon, just as it would through a tube, without any difficulty. There are three places where this human tube bends at right angles. One is on the right side, another on the left side and the third is far down in the left hand corner of your abdomen. If the colon is too sharply bent at these points you will have trouble.

If you allow the colon which runs from right to left to sag, ruining its naturally straight, horizontal line, you increase the angle of the bends and add another one. This does not happen in men and women who have strong abdominal walls, but in those whose abdominal muscles are weak and bulging.

So, when you think of the abdomen remember that it affects health as well as beauty of figure. Today I am going to give you an abdominal exercise highly recommended by Doctor C. Ward Crampton, of New York. He calls it "The Camel."

This is the way you do it:

Kneel on your hands and knees, elbows straight. Arch the back as high as you possibly can like a cat. While the back is still arched swing the hips to the right but keep your shoulders and head in the same position. Now lower the back, making a hollow. While in this position swing the hips to the left. Raise back and continue.

If you would like to have my abdominal exercises which strengthen the abdominal muscles and reduce fatty deposits, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 2, "Abdominal Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Honey Rice—½ cup liquid honey, ½ cup blanched toasted almonds chopped fine (other nuts may be used), 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt (if salted nutmeats are used omit this salt), 3 cups hot cooked rice.

Preparing the fluffy white rice: Put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups cold water and 1 teaspoon salt in a two-quart saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Bring to a vigorous boil. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and steam for 14 minutes or until all the water is absorbed, leaving the separate rice grains with their full nutritional value. This makes very firm rice grains. (If you prefer more tender rice grains, add ½ cup more water and increase the slow cooking time 4 or 5 minutes). Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Never stir rice; lift gently with a fork. Keep leftover rice in a covered bowl in the refrigerator. Makes 3 generous cups fluffy rice. Heat honey thoroughly in the top of a double boiler, stir in the nutmeats, add lemon and salt. Serve over individual servings of hot cooked rice.

To glamorize cream sauce, add a little cheese. You can use Canadian Cheddar, or for a change, Canadian blue-vein Roquefort type or pimento process.

Snows Fall But Summer Styles In Montreal Dress Salons

MONTREAL, (CP).—While Montrealers battled the first snow storm of the season a group of fashion writers were temporarily transformed to sunnier climes today for a 1952 preview of swim suits.

The show, by Beatrice Pine, was part of Montreal's fashion week which got under way today.

Simplicity and feminity are the keynotes for next summer's swim suits and beachwear of prints and fabrics. Satin and taffeta lastex are basic materials used.

Frosty corded embroidery emphasizes the simpleness of a one-piece suit in woven pique made with a collared decollette. Pockets on a satin lastex suit have scallops outlined in embroidery repeated at the bustline.

White and black, the favorites of years past, have competition in the high sun shades of aqua surf, golden yellow, coral, emerald lake and sundown blue.

When Editor Reports Own Wedding—It's Different

CLARKS, Neb. (AP)—Editor John B. Carter, 54, of the Clarks News, has his own ideas about how a wedding should be reported—especially his own.

He wrote in a recent issue of the weekly paper that he was going to depart from the "traditional raving about the bride's ensemble and tell about the groom's attire."

The newspaper's report of Carter's marriage to Myrtle Mace, a telephone operator, described the editor's attire as "a bluish business suit consisting of coat, vest and pants . . ."

"The suit had been recently cleaned and pressed. The coat fitted snugly across the back and the collar lay flat on the back of the neck, with lapels on either side at the front. . . . Beneath the coat and vest was a freshly-laundered white shirt . . . and around the neck a tie, a gift from the bride, tied in a four-in-hand style. . . .

"The groom also wore shoes, shined and polished. . . .

"No showers are necessary except to keep showering us with advertising and subscriptions."

Shirley Bowcott Married On Parents' Anniversary

A date of triple significance was marked recently when Shirley Jean Bowcott became the bride of John Henry Christianson on her parents' wedding anniversary and her father's birthday.

The ceremony took place in First United Church with Rev. Moir A. J. Waters officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bowcott, Quadra Street, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Christianson, Wark Street.

Baskets of white chrysanthemums mixed with greenery decorated the church and Mrs. R. Wood played wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of shimmering satin. The full skirt was accented with a lace panel in both the back and the front and the lily-point sleeves were also of lace. A full-length lace-trimmed veil cascaded from a lace veil cap trimmed with seed pearls. Her crescent-shaped bouquet was of gardenias, pink carnations and roses.

Miss Patricia Edmonds, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She was gowned in mauve taffeta topped with net and a brocaded jacket. Her bouquet was pink carnations and mauve chrysanthemums. Miss Betty Bowcott, sister of the bride, chose pink net over taffeta and Miss Ann Hanbury wore a gown of green net over taffeta. They both carried bouquets to match that of the maid of honor.

Bob Christianson, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Ray Christianson, also a brother of the groom, and Jack Blain.

A three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by the bride's uncle, J. H. McGill, centred the bridal table at a reception in Norway House. Candles and baskets of chrysanthemums completed the decorations. H. B. Finch, best man at the bride's parents' wedding, proposed the toast.

The bride wore a navy suit topped with a dusty, blue coat for her going-away ensemble. She complemented it with red and navy accessories.

The honeymoon will be spent in Vancouver and Seattle.

Past, Future Conventions Described By B. & P.W. National Vice-President

Highlighting her address by humorous reminiscences, Mrs. Margaret Campbell, national vice-president, Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, described for members of the local club former national conventions of the group from 1930.

Occasion was the national night supper meeting of the Victoria Club, held in the new club-rooms, 904 Government Street.

Eighty-four members and friends attended, including members from both Nanaimo and Duncan clubs.

Head table was centred with a low arrangement of yellow and white chrysanthemums flanked by graduating green and yellow candles and glass bubble bowls filled with silver and green lichen. Rose haws, pyrecanthus and cotoneaster berries and greenery were arranged around the hall by Miss M. Cameron.

Seated with the president, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, at the head table were Mrs. Campbell, Miss Margaret Clay, past national president, Mrs. Agnes Jaughin, Duncan president, Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, chairman of the evening, Miss Cecily Laurence and Mrs. Laura Campbell, Nanaimo president and immediate past president, Mrs. C. C. Wyatt, soloist, her accompanist, Mrs. C. C. Cook, Mrs. Bessie Smith, first vice-president, and all the past presidents of the local club who attended the meeting.

The guest speaker, introduced by Mrs. Clare Lord, concluded her address with a brief outline of a program of the 1952 national convention which will be held in Vancouver from July 14 to 18 inclusive with a social week-end to follow in Victoria and on Vancouver Island, July 19 and 20.

A special Business and Professional Women's Clubs' train will carry delegates and observers from the Atlantic Coast to the Pacific to the convention, Mrs. Campbell announced. She was thanked by Mrs. C. Simpson.

A new emblem for the club-room, painted by club member Mrs. Barbara Woodward, was received with enthusiasm. Miss Lily Henderson gave the emblem interpretation in a short thought-provoking address. Mrs. Wyatt and Mrs. Cook delighted the gathering with their two groups of songs. Miss Jane Hall, regional officer for Vancouver Island, spoke briefly on work of up-island clubs.

Guests present included: Miss June Spinks, Mrs. M. Davidson, Mrs. P. Shewood and Mrs. C. Mowatt, Nanaimo; Miss V. Harris, Miss Kate Robertson, Miss M. Evans, Mrs. F. Paget and Miss G. Holliday, Duncan; Miss Dickson, Miss E. Warburton, Mrs. Carla Bivainis, Mrs. C. W. Paulin, Mrs. Windle, Mrs. Hickman, Miss Mercer, Victoria.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Old Man Coyote is crafty. He is one of the craftiest of all the folks in the Green Forest. In some ways he is as crafty and sly as Reddy Fox. Old Man Coyote had been visiting the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest.

"I simply must have a Beaver dinner," Old Man Coyote would say to himself after he visited Paddy's pond. And when he said it his mouth would water. All the time he knew that getting a Beaver dinner wouldn't be easy. Those Beaver folk were wise in the ways of all the visitors to their pond. They knew who they had reason to be afraid of, and they were smart enough to always have someone watching while the others worked.

Every night Old Man Coyote visited the little pond deep in the Green Forest. He kept where the Black Shadows were blackest. He could get quite near without danger of being seen, for Beaver eyes are not the best of eyes. All the time he was trying to plan how he could get between one of those Beavers and the water. For only on land could he hope to catch one of them.

For a long time he didn't see an opportunity. It wouldn't do to try and fail. Then Paddy and the others would be more watchful than ever.

"I guess I'll have to be patient and wait until they have cut all the trees near the water," he told Mrs. Coyote.

"I guess you're just wasting your time," retorted Mrs. Coyote. "If you'll take my advice, you'll forget those Beavers and do your hunting somewhere else."

But Old Man Coyote didn't take her advice. Sometimes when he thought how good a Beaver dinner would staste, it drove him almost crozy.

One by one, the trees nearest the water were cut down and cut up. Old Man Coyote discovered that only one kind of tree was being cut; only aspen trees were being cut. Some of these grew in among other kinds of trees. It must be that aspen bark was their favorite food. You see Old Man Coyote had long ago found out that it is the bark of the trees they cut that the Beaver folk eat.

"I'll get one of those Beavers or my name isn't Old Man Coyote," he muttered.

ARMY ANT

Baby A-Bombs Expected To Aid Europe's Defense

ROME, Nov. 27 (UP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the North Atlantic Treaty Council today that he was counting on the new "baby" tactical atomic bombs for the defense of Europe against Communist aggression.

Addressing the military committee of the council, Eisenhower said, however, that even the use of such bombs would not remove the need for 60 to 70 divisions of ground troops for his Atlantic Pact defense forces.

Eisenhower warned also that an Allied defense line must be established east of the German Rhine. If a defense line were set up on the Rhine itself to oppose an attack from the east it would result in nothing but a stalemate, he said.

Delegates, from participating countries who are here to discuss defense problems met in secret today, but a spokesman disclosed Eisenhower's speech.

The supreme commander of the Atlantic forces said his Atlantic Pact command was "taking into account what new weapons might do to facilitate the task of building up strength in Europe . . . to face aggression."

"New weapons," it was made known, mean the new small atomic weapons recently tested in the United States in sight of troops. They can be used on the battlefield for limited destruction in contrast to the destruction of the larger A-bombs.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP)—City Council action in allowing unclaimed dogs at city pound to be used for vivisection work may be challenged in the courts.

Smelters Gain In Continued Market Rally

TORONTO, Nov. 27 (CP).—Stock market prices held firmly to early gains today toward the session's close.

Papers, agricultures, steels and liquors posted a wide list of advances ranging from fractions to more than a point. Utilities, banks retail stores and miscellaneous industrials drew firm support while foods, refining oils, textiles and manufacturing companies held gains and losses in balance.

Steadily increasing demand for leading industrials and some low-priced mining issues boosted the day's turnover. Eureka was a standout as more than 270,000 shares changed hands.

Base metals climbed steadily. Consolidated Smelters jumped $3.50 while Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont and Falconbridge strengthened. Ascot, Barvue, Eureka, Mindamar, Quebec Copper and United Asbestos gained Western oils eased from early gains. Admiral, Calmont, Calvan, Central Explorers, Jupiter, Model, Pan Western, Selburn and Trans Empire showed gains ranging to about 20 cents.

Senior golds showed eight gains ranging from pennies to the 50 cent jump of McIntyre-Porcupine against one loss. Secondary issues strengthened.

Activity In Oils

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27—Prices continued upward today with oils again the most active section. Chief gains were made by Calvan 5.80, up 30 cents; Model 2.00, up 20 cents; Anglo-Canadian 8.10, up 10 cents; Del Rio 1.75, up 7 cents. Calmont, Central Leduc, Vulcan, York, Long Island, and Royal Canadian also moved forward. Britalta was unchanged at 5.10.

Western Uranium gained 15 cents at 4.15 among mines, while Estella, Van Roi, Quatsino and Premier Border were also higher.

B.C. lumbering shares recovered some more ground, Canadian Western Lumber was 11.00, up ¼; Powell River 26.00, up ¼.

Strong Finish

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (CP).—Stock prices continued strong near the close today. Trading was fairly active.

Yesterday's upsurge, which climaxed six consecutive sessions of decline, was continued from the opening. Gains ranged to more than three points among the leaders.

Senior metals, senior oils, papers and steels were strong. Utilities and carriers firmed slightly. Beverages and miscellaneous industrials moved irregularly higher.

Consolidated Smelters jumped 3½ points to 166, while Aluminium advanced 2¾ to 101. Price brothers was up 1⅝ at 30⅝, Consolidated Paper one at 37½, International Petroleum 1⅛ at 22¼, McColl-Frontenac 1½ at 36½, Algoma one at 45½ and Ford A 1⅛ at 52⅞.

Not Enough Push

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—The stock market moved ahead slowly today with price advances of fractions to around a point.

There was disappointment along Wall Street that there wasn't more push to the advance. But the two successive days of moving forward was a definite relief from the week-long slide downward.

The point-or-more gainers included Cities Service, Northern Pacific, Amerada, American Cyanamid, Dow Chemical and American Can.

Other advances included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic, General Motors, U.S. Rubber, Case, Boeing Airplane, Radio Corp., American Telephone, American Smelting, Du Pont, General Electric, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (N.J.) and United Air Lines.

With the exception of Hiram Walker, which dropped ¼, all Canadian stocks advanced.

Gainers were Canadian Pacific and Distillers, up ¼ each, Dome and Nickel, up ⅜ each, and McIntyre, up ½.

London Rallies

LONDON, Nov. 27 (Reuters).—Most sections of the London Stock Exchange closed with a firm tone today. First-class miscellaneous industrials such as Dunlops, Imperial Chemicals and Courtaulds moved higher by several pence as did such groups as engineerings and tobaccos.

Yesterday's uptrend in British Government funds was resumed and the section closed with advances of one point on the day.

Feature of a generally better oil section was a sharp advance in Anglo-Iranian at 5 21-32

APPEALS TO OTTAWA

Business Fears Local Recession

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor

Three sections of the Victoria business community are appealing to the federal government to save them. Building contractors, automobile dealers and major appliance vendors say that the pressure of high taxation and tight credit is causing unemployment, threatens to put many firms out of business, and to create a local recession.

Fred Hawes, former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, supporting the building contractors' appeal for smaller down payment through more generous mortgage limits, declares that home building in Victoria is dropping back to "an insignificant trickle."

He points out that this has not only thrown 150 carpenters idle but has caused a depressed state in many co-related industries.

Young

Mr. Hawes claims that the 80 per cent loan presently permitted is not judged on 1951 building costs, and that in practice the percentage loan limit is nearer to 60 per cent. "This means that the down payment on $10,000 may not be much less than $4,000, which few people can afford," he says.

Also on the warpath are the local automobile dealers. Harry Gladwell, a member of the committee chosen to state the trade's case, says, "The automobile business has been taxed so hard that it is being strangled to death."

Mr. Gladwell points out that car sales in Victoria have shrunk by over 50 per cent, and claims that few people can now afford to buy even the cheapest type of new Canadian car.

"That is not surprising when you consider that in Victoria the average monthly payment required for a new car is $130," he said.

"The Victoria motorist is the worst placed in all Canada," said Mr. Gladwell. "He has to add the heaviest freight charge to his bill. Last summer I supplied a car to a customer who accepted delivery at Halifax. The freight charge on this car was $68. If my customer had taken up that car in Victoria his bill to the railway company would have been $297. Thus the 3,000 rail journey from Windsor to Victoria is about four times the price for the 1,500 journey from Windsor to Halifax."

"The railways say they give a cheaper rate to Halifax because they have to meet sea shipping competition that does not exist with Victoria," said Mr. Gladwell. "That is all the more reason why we should get the concession of having repayment of loans stretched from 12 to 15 months to give British Columbia motorists a level deal with those in the East . . ."

The British Columbia auto dealers are asking the government for similar terms to those in force in the United States, where the down payment is one-third (against one-half) and repayment is over 18 months (against 12 months).

* * *

Members of the major appliance retail trade association are in largely the same position as the automobile dealers although in their case the freight charge problem is hardly so acute.

Overloaded inventories are causing hardship, and Jack Wilcox, president of the local retailers' association, claims that while the government has achieved its object in restricting sales the remedy is proving too drastic. "The hardship on our industry is disproportionately large," he says.

The association has written to Ottawa declaring that something must be done. What the association asks is a reduction of the down payment from one-third to one-quarter on major appliances with payments spread over 18 months instead of 12 months

"In the U.S. a freezing of styles has been adopted as a means to discourage unnecessary buying of major appliances, and I think that a regulation of this nature would enable the Canadian government to relent a little in its credit restrictions," said Mr. Wilcox.

Shingle Mills To Close Down

Lack of demand for cedar shingles is causing two Victoria shingle mills to close down temporarily.

Horton Cedar Manufacturing Co. Ltd. closes down Friday fo an indefinite period and McCarter Shingle Co. is proposing to close down for a Christmas recess while the mill undergoes repairs. Here, too, reopening date is indefinite.

Substitute roofings said to be underselling wooden shingles together with slow down in new building is said to be the cause of the closures.

Convertibles Strong

MONTREAL, Nov. 27 (CP).—There was little activity today on the Montreal Bond Market and prices were relatively unchanged. On the corporate market, convertibles were stronger in sympathy with rising stock prices and trading was inclined to be more active than in the last few months.

$ Exchange

NEW YORK, Nov. 27, Noon (CP)—Canadian dollar was unchanged at a discount of 4 1/16 per cent in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80⅛.

Bank Pays A Million Extra Tax

The Canadian Bank of Commerce, during its fiscal year which ended last month, paid the government of Canada $3,005,000 in taxes. This was $1,000,000 more than it had been called upon to meet last year, but despite the big increase the bank managed to make a slight increase of its net profits at $4,023,145.

In the report issued today the situation is described as "satisfactory." Depreciation on bank premises was written off at $1,350,194.

Dividends to shareholders totalled $3,000,000, and $1,023,145 was carried forward to the profit and loss account. The balance in this account now stands at $5,743,415.

Cash amounting to $167 million represented 10.04 per cent of total liabilities to the public. The corresponding ratio a year ago was 9.53 per cent.

BILLION QUICK ASSETS

Quick assets were $1,009 million and comprised cash, cheques and bank balances totalling $291 million, and securities and call loans $718 million. These were 60 per cent of total liabilities to the public amounting to $1,668 million.

Current loans and discounts in Canada increased $93 million, from $494 million at the end of October, 1950, to $587 million in the statement issued today.

Total deposits amounted to $1,615 million. Deposits by the government of Canada and provincial governments were $68 million as compared with $78 million last year, a reduction of about $10 million.

Government of Canada and provincial government securities in the bank's portfolio totalled $538 million as against $675 million last year. Call and short loans were $32 million this year compared with $36 million last year.

Celanese May Expand Arrow Lake Program

VANCOUVER, Nov. 26 (CP).—Harold Blancke, president of the Celanese Corporation of America, has forecast a new industry for interior British Columbia—the production of viscose staple fibre and tire yarn.

Blancke said the integrated forest-industrial enterprise the company is starting on the Arrow Lakes in the Interior may have a viscose plant.

"It may well prove desirable to erect facilities to produce pulp products such as kraft and newsprint in addition to high alpha and rayon grade pulp," he said.

His Canadian Chemical Co., which is building a petro-chemical industry near Edmonton, may logically lead to the production of plastics, film, wrapping materials and similar products.

Engineers Plan To Save Redwater's Oil Pressure

River Water Will Be Pumped Into Wells To Prolong Life Of Chief Alberta Field

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON, Nov. 27 (CP).—Canada's biggest oil field is going to start drinking water to lengthen its life expectancy.

Water—millions of barrels of it—is needed to restore fast-dwindling pressure and keep oil moving to the surface in the Redwater field, 45 miles northeast of Edmonton.

At the current production rate, this pressure will dip about a year from now to the point where further operation would be against the best engineering practices. Unless something is done, the ultimate net recovery of oil from the field will be lowered substantially.

Average pressure at the bottom of Redwater wells in August, 1948—only six months after the rich field was discovered—was 1,050 pounds per square inch.

Now, after heavy production last summer when Redwater's output equalled or surpassed that of all other Alberta fields combined, the pressure is down to about 800 P.S.I., estimated by government engineers to be about a year away.

Why the loss of pressure?

During its short life the Redwater field has produced some 33,000,000 barrels of oil. Nothing has been put back under the ground to fill this big gap. That's where the water will come in.

HELP FROM RIVER

To keep pressure from falling below the danger or "saturation" point—when pressure of gas in solution of the oil stops bringing up any oil—it is planned to "flood" the sub-surface reaches of the field. The water would run under the oil pool through wells supplied from the North Saskatchewan River, which flows through the south end of the field.

If this water were injected by gravity flow it would likely mean many water wells would be needed. The number of injection wells could be reduced by pumping the water down.

Proven reserves of the Redwater field have been estimated at 1,200,000,000 barrels of oil. The amount that can be recovered by drilling is about 700,000,000 barrels

With every withdrawal of 140,000 barrels of oil there is a drop of one pound in pressure. Government engineers say it is reasonable to expect that the pressure maintenance scheme could raise the ultimate oil recovery from the field by as much as 10 per cent.

This means that about 120,000,000 more barrels of oil would be recovered with pressure maintenance. This would be a great saving since a barrel of Redwater crude is worth $2.46 today at the well.

WILL RETURN SALT

The pressure maintenance scheme likely will go hand in hand with a salt water disposal project now being considered by the operators.

Water now produced with the oil is merely emptied into pits at the Well site. But in many cases the salt and sulphur-laden water spills over and damages nearby farm land.

By returning this water under the surface through injection wells, the operators will be helping pressure maintenance while also preventing damage to surface land. A network of gathering lines would be needed to carry the disposal water to injection wells situated at key points.

It is not the intention now to put enough water under the surface to bring bottom-hole pressure back to where it was before drilling started. Instead an attempt will be made to match, barrel for barrel the oil removed, thus keeping pressure constant and safe.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

By OSWALD JACOBY

Back in 1928, when the national open pairs championship was staged for the first time (before most people had ever heard of contract bridge), Waldemar von Zedtwitz walked off with the national title. He repeated the feat in 1937, and will be trying to win it for the third time in Detroit next week.

One of the hands that Zedtwitz played recently makes it clear that he is at the top of his game. I'm willing to bet dollars to doughnuts that most of my readers won't find the winning line of play even though they can see all four hands.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the queen, forcing Zedtwitz to ruff. Declarer then drew four rounds of trumps, discarding a diamond and a club from dummy.

East also discarded a diamond, but then had to find two more discards on the third and fourth trumps. He correctly decided that he could not afford to part with a spade, so he signalled with the eight and six of clubs.

That was all the information that Zedtwitz had. He proceeded to make his contract against the best defense. Can you?

Declarer knew that West had started with six diamonds and four hearts. From East's club signal he deduced the rest of the situation. Hence he could play the hand just as though all the cards were exposed to view.

Zedtwitz merely led out his last trump, discarding a second club from dummy. East still couldn't afford to discard a spade, since South would then run four spade tricks. Hence East had to discard the ten of clubs.

Declarer then led a club, allowing East to take the queen. East returned a spade which dummy won with the king. Dummy returned the king of clubs to East's ace.

East now returned another spade, which South won with the queen. And at this point South's five and four of clubs were as good as gold.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

WITH TOMMIE WALTERS

Artur Rodzinski is scheduled to conduct the next two concerts to be broadcast by "Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal" orchestra from Plateau Hall. The first of these two broadcasts, to be heard over CJOR and the Dominion network tonight at 10.30, is being devoted to music from the Russian classics. The second, arranged for Dec. 11, will feature German music.

* * *

In conducting "Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal," Rodzinski is returning to familiar ground. He has conducted in the Quebec metropolis on numerous occasions. In fact the scene of most of his musical activities since 1925 has been on the American continent. He has conducted most of the American symphony organizations from New York to Los Angeles, and has been a musical director of the Cleveland Orchestra, The New York Philharmonic-Symphony and the Chicago Orchestra. Tonight's program will include Prokofieff's "Classical Symphony in D Major"; Moussorgsky's "Prelude to Khovantchina"; and Stravinsky's "Fire Bird Suite."

* * *

Commencing this week the two feminine singing stars on the "Jack Smith—Dinah Shore—Ginny Simms Show" will be exchanging their solo dates. Now Dinah will be heard with Jack on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, while Ginny will pick up the singing stint on Tuesdays and Thursdays. But despite the change in appearance days, the popular songstresses will continue to feature the latest in song hits and bouncy lyrics in solos and duets, backed by Frank DeVol and his orchestra. Broadcast time is 8.15 nightly, Mondays through Fridays over KIRO.

* * *

TONIGHT . . . "Hollywood Theatre" at 5.30 on CBR. "Life With Luigi" at 6 on KIRO. "Fibber McGee and Molly" on KOMO or "Pursuit" on KIRO at 6.30. "People Are Funny" at 7 on KIRO. "Red Skelton Show" at 7.30 on CKDA. Incidentally this popular comedy-variety show is heard regularly each week over the local station one day AHEAD of the big network's presentation. "Cavalcade of America" at 8.30 on KOMO. "Bob Hope" on KOMO or "Hometowners' Show" over CJVI at 9. "Hour of Charm" follows at 9.30 on CJVI.

THE LADY REPEATED: 'HA'

Rousing Meeting Stirs Vic West

An election meeting the likes which Victoria has never seen before took place Monday night at the old Victoria West Firehall.

Scheduled originally for mayoralty candidate Claude Harrison and aldermanic contestant Brent Murdoch, the meeting heard these two and four other candidates for civic office and more than half a dozen others who, though seeking no public post, simply wanted to get things off their chests.

The crowd of nearly 100 persons loved it.

They clapped, yelled, laughed, shouted, got angry with one another and argued with the chairman, retired police sergeant Arthur Bishop, who at times resorted to bellowing to bring about order.

Principals besides Harrison and Murdoch were Harry Haigh, considered more or less a dark horse in his bid for the mayor's seat, and aldermanic candidates John McLennan, P. B. Freedman and James Neely.

JOE NORTH PRESENT

Others taking part were lawyer Pat Sinnott, who attended to speak in support of Harrison, but who ended up being subject to a lot of questions concerning property he owned; Joe North, complete with familiar bowler hat and equally familiar Bronx cheer, and a well-dressed woman who heckled the candidates, spoke somewhat excitedly about Victoria being a cesspool and then left the meeting hurriedly before the end without identifying herself.

The meeting started off orderly enough. Chairman Bishop introduced Harrison and the retired city prosecutor began to explain his platform.

FEDERAL PROMISES

He said he would fight to have Ottawa give Victoria the regular steamship service she was promised 80 years ago under the terms of union with Canada; he said he would control uncertain and useless civic expenses; he said he would conduct all city business openly and do away with closed-door sessions; he said he would hold regular "citizens hours" when people could gather and ask him questions about the city's business and be given straight answers.

"I'll be firm, fearless and as fair as I have been in the past. I've never done a dirty trick on anyone."

It was at this point the well-dressed woman heckler entered the proceedings.

"Ha, ha," she said, loud enough for all to hear.

She sat quietly for a time but forced another laugh when Harrison spoke of newspapers.

"The editors of the press are doing very well for the people, going on and why," Harrison said.

The woman said: "Ha, ha."

When given the floor by Chairman Bishop she talked of buying a piece of property in the city about to be condemned and then being faced with heavy renovation charges. She said she'd gone to a series of lawyers. She said conditions existed here and that German Gestapoism could not be worse. She mentioned that she'd lived 20 years in the United States. She alleged there was a dope racket functioning here.

William F. Williams arose and protested he couldn't hear. Pointing his finger at someone sitting nearby, he demanded. "Would this man keep quiet or get out."

The well-dressed mystery woman identified the man to whom Williams pointed.

"That's Mr. North," she said. "Mr. North has suffered something terrific."

She was cut short when North rose to his feet and people sitting near him called for him to sit down. There was temporary disorder.

DROP POLL TAX

Chairman Bishop roared and the meeting was quiet. The woman quickly returned to her seat in the audience. Brent Murdoch was introduced.

Murdoch said he was for a more progressive attitude toward industrial and economic development of the city and said he thought city administration should be made more efficient. He said he was in favor of reducing City Council, of employing experts outright instead of hiring them to make reports from time to time, and of doing away with the poll tax.

Pat Sinnott told of being Victoria's first mayor's secretary 30 years ago. He said there had been no progress in internal management at City Hall since then. He said the city had built one white elephant after another.

The well-dressed lady said "Ha!"

Sinnott smiled.

"The lady who just made the noise with her mouth probably has some grievance against a prosecutor. There are lots of people who have. I've listened to lots of tales of woe. I don't really blame them. The human mind works that way."

North, at the back of the hall, rose to ask again and again "Hey, are you a candidate?" Chairman Bishop quieted North, then said he had overlooked Harry Haigh in the hall, but that since Haigh was there and was a candidate for mayor, he could speak if he wished.

"They've been trying to ride me for 20 years," Haigh charged.

Looking straight at Harrison, he continued: "Mr Harrison has had me up in front of him (it was presumed he meant Magistrate H. C. Hall) 25 or 30 times. I've always defended myself."

"You'll hear from me a lot more," he went on. "I'm going to get in the city council if it takes me 20 years."

Near the end of the meeting one elderly gentleman in the crowd asked meekly if the meeting would be serious a moment to consider a serious question.

The meeting suddenly became hushed.

"When," he asked, "is the brewery strike going to finish?"

Everybody laughed, followed the chairman in singing "God Save the King" and then went home saying what a good meeting it was.

Traffic Check Near Tillicum School Urged

Traffic control will be tightened up near Tillicum Road School.

Several proposals for improved safety measures were approved by Saanich Council last night and will include:

A white centre line on Tillicum Road from Gorge to Burnside; preparation of a by-law for stop signs on all roads between Gorge and Carey Roads entering Tillicum; placing of caution signs near Burnside and Tillicum and Tillicum and Gorge Roads; painting of a cross-walk at Wascana and Burnside, and the cutting of heavy brush in school areas bordering roads.

The proposals followed a meeting between the school Parent-Teacher Association and municipal police commission.

Council also approved the replacing of stop signs on the south side of Harriet Road leading into Tillicum.

Erection of a flasher warning light at Burnside and Tillicum was left over for next year's council to handle.

Report Progress On Saanich Hall

Work on the new $18,000 Central Saanich municipal hall is progressing satisfactorily.

NEW ENGINEER ENGAGED FOR ARENA

Dallas Road Waterfront 'Great White Way' On Windy Day

Hundreds of motorists followed a Victoria custom this morning and drove out to Dallas Road to watch this great display. Great showers of spray were thrown over the drive bordering on the seashore. High tides were pushed by winds which the weatherman said reach 50 m.p.h. in gusts. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

700 Acres Flooded

High Tide, Wind Smash Seawall

Two families were evacuated from Telegraph Bay Road, Central Saanich, after punishing waves smashed an improvised breakwater and flooded the road to a depth of three feet.

Tom Michell, municipal superintendent of works, got members of the Racliffe and Little families out of danger just minutes before the breakwater collapsed for a distance of 200 to 300 feet.

Flood waters, driven by high winds, have covered and ruined 700 acres of rich potato farming land operated by J. D. Wright, E. R. Atkinson and the Michell and Montford estates.

Two other families, whose names were not learned at press time, also are marooned by the flood conditions, but were reported not in immediate danger.

The breakwater, which broke down shortly after 1 o'clock, had been built by the R.C.A.F. during the last war, of poles, sand, gravel and rocks.

The area is known specifically as Island View Beach, and is in a direct line east from the Keating telephone exchange on East Saanich Road.

Michell was reported standing by with the municipal truck to assist in further rescues if required.

Central Saanich Reeve Sydney Pickles blasted laxity on the part of the federal government for the weakened condition of the seawall.

He said that the municipality had repeatedly written the government asking for its repair but they had "disclaimed any responsibility."

The reeve said use of the beach as an R.C.A.F. target range had undermined the banks.

TUG ASHORE

VANCOUVER, Nov. 27 (CP).—Three Vancouver men, the crew of the tug New Delta, are safe here today after their tug was washed ashore in a howling gale.

The men lashed themselves in the wheelhouse to keep from being washed overboard while the Canadian Pacific Ss. Princess Norah stood helplessly by for two hours.

Shaken but safe are: Captain Ben Macdonald, Engineer John Argue and Deckhand Harold Price.

The 57-foot tug was a total loss and a landing barge, Lucky N, which broke loose from the tug during the gale has not been found.

The Princess Norah was slightly damaged when Captain L. W. McDonald tried to get close to the tug and a gust of wind swung the ship around to shore.

Technician Will Inspect Machines Throughout Year

By RONALD BAIRD

A first-class refrigeration technician who "really knows his business" has been retained by the Memorial Arena Commission.

The appointment is expected to cure nearly four years of ice-making headaches at the civic trouble spot.

Commission chairman J. Carl Pendray said today Dick Reith, former technician with the Canadian Ice Machine Co., has been in the city for the past week and is now working in a supervisory capacity at the arena.

His appointment makes one of the suggested steps made public in a report by consulting engineers Swan, Rhodes and Wooster.

The Arena Commission has been assured that Reith will keep a close eye on the ice-making equipment year-round—employed by the commission in the winter and on call in the summer as a resident representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Co. in the city.

Both Mr. Pendray and arena manager Joe Dukowski expressed assurance that Mr. Reith's appointment will put an end to arena ice-making troubles.

Report No Surprise To Pendray

The arena report, with its conclusion that about $56,000 will put the arena in good shape, came as no shock to Commission Chairman Pendray or Arena Manager Dukowski. Both men said it carried recommendations that they themselves had felt were needed.

In the matter of appointing a competent refrigeration engineer, Dukowski felt that the only mistake made was in not having had one from the beginning.

"Previous engineers have never had enough experience," said Pendray. He was echoed by the arena manager who—no refrigeration expert himself—agreed that even he was able to see that lack of a competent supervisor caused the trouble.

Dukowski felt that the report could have been a bit stronger. He plans to present additional recommendations of his own soon.

Pendray said that rumors and verbal reports of arena difficulties have now been clarified by the engineer's report, and that the airing of the situation in black and white should put an end to past troubles.

"Verbal reports have never been accurate before," he said.

Assurance of complete co-operation by the city council has been given with the city manager in the position of liaison man between commission and council.

Both Dukowski and Pendray feel satisfied with the operation of temporary ice-making coils supplied by Yarrow's Ltd. engineers but the $13,000 bill for the coils came as a "shock" to Pendray.

Pendray said the arena commission will face the $56,000 repair bill by making the most needed alterations as soon as possible and doing the entire job over an extended period of time.

CZECH HATCHETMAN HELD FOR TREASON

Moscow-Trained Rudolf Slansky Loses Post As Vice-President; Arrested By Communists

LONDON, Nov. 27 (AP).—Moscow-trained Rudolf Slansky, one-time hatchetman of Czechoslovak Communism, has been fired as vice-premier and arrested for "activities against the state," Prague radio announced today.

The arrest was ordered by Communist President Klement Gottwald at the suggestion of Premier Antonin Zapotocky, the announcement said. It said "investigations into activities of subversive groups" brought out facts that convict Slansky.

Slansky was removed from his job as secretary-general of the Czechoslovak Communist party last September in a move tied by Western observers to Moscow orders to the Czech Communists to tighten their ranks against inroads of "Titoism."

The announcement at the time said Slansky would get "another important state post," but did not say what it was to be.

The Czech government shake-up was believed to have been linked with growing unrest in Czechoslovakia at the rising demands of the ruling Communists for greater production. Demands on the Czech economy created critical shortages and passive resistance among some workers.

An undeground source reported from Czechoslovakia last month that the Slansky ouster came because the Oatis case backfired. The Czech Communists imprisoned and convicted A.P. correspondent William N. Oatis as a "spy," sentencing him to 10 years. The trial was denounced throughout the non-Communist world.

"In the course of recent investigations into activities of subversive groups, previously unknown facts have come to light which convict Slansky of activities against the state. As a result he has been placed in custody."

BULLETINS

Cotnoir Starting?

Jerry Cotnoir, regular goalie with last year's edition of the Victoria Cougars will likely start in the nets tonight against Vancouver Canucks, it has been intimated by general manager Fred Hutchinson. Cotnoir suffered a broken leg while playing baseball this summer and has been on the shelf since that time.

Meyer Under Fire

TORONTO, Nov. 27 (CP).—The leftist Toronto Peace Council said today it will hold a mass meeting here Dec. 9 to protest "special privileges given to war-criminal Kurt Meyer."

Oppose Increase

EDMONTON, Nov. 27 (CP).—Premier E. C. Manning said today the Alberta government will oppose an application by the Canadian railways for increased freight rates on grain moving within the west for domestic consumption.

Closing Prices

Western Uranium and Beaverlodge Uranium came in for support this afternoon on Vancouver Stock Exchange. Western Uranium jumped 35 cents to 4.60 and Beaverlodge 14 cents to 1.19.

Otherwise there was little alteration from the forenoon session. York was slightly firmer among oils at 45½, while Premier Border added a penny

Truce Line Pact Signed

Korean Negotiators Offer Widely Different Ideas On Cease-Fire

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 27 (AP).—Truce negotiators signed an agreement on a Korean cease-fire line today—and immediately came up with widely different ideas on how to put a cease-fire into effect.

United Nations delegates presented a seven-point plan for supervising an armistice. It included provision for joint Allied-Communist inspection teams with "free access to all parts of Korea."

The Communists did not mention either inspection teams or supervision behind enemy lines in a five-point plan they submitted. They have consistently refused to let outsiders enter Red Korea.

"The session was short and sweet," said Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate.

"We started the ball rolling by telling the Communists their proposal wasn't broad enough on the general principles (for supervision). Then we gave them an idea of what we wanted."

The Communists asked for an adjournment until 11 a.m. Wednesday (9 p.m. EST Tuesday) to study the U.N. plan.

The conference, set in a Christmas-like landscape in the snow of Panmunjom, opened with a series of agreements on a provisional cease-fire line—first by the staff officers who drew the line on a 14-foot map, then by sub-committees which had argued over a buffer zone for more than three months, and finally by the full truce delegations.

The truce teams also approved a buffer-zone agreement, making the line the cease-fire line if a full agreement is signed within 30 days.

TROOPS WOULD BAN FIGHTING DURING TALKS

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Korea, Nov. 27 (UP).—American frontline troops feel that the shooting in Korea should halt immediately or subside by unspoken agreement while the truce talks continue.

But they're still willing to attack if their commanders will name an objective that will end the war by defeating the enemy.

That's the typical opinion expressed in troop "bull sessions" over the last two weeks. It shows a definite change in G.I. opinion since the armistice talks began in July. At that time the soldiers were suspicious of the Communist motives and expected the talks to end with a Red assault.

O'Doul Signed By San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP).—The San Diego Baseball Club today announced that Frank "Lefty" O'Doul was its new manager.

O'Doul, one of the most colorful veterans in organized baseball, thus remains in the Pacific Coast League.

He comes here from San Francisco, where he managed that club for 17 years and developed a number of major league stars, including the great Joe DiMaggio.

San Diego president Bill Starr said O'Doul was taking the job under a one-year contract. He declined to disclose the salary but it was reported to be about $25,000—the highest ever paid a San Diego pilot.

Browns, White Sox In 8-Player Deal

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today announced an eight-player deal with the St. Louis Browns, bringing three Brownies to the White Sox for five Sox players.

The Sox get catcher Sherman Lollar, pitcher Al Widmar and shortstop Tom Upton in exchange for first sacker Gordon Goldsberry, outfielder Jim Rivera, pitcher Dick Littlefield, catcher Gus Niarhos and infielder Joe De Maestri.

British Disclose Meyer Given Week's Vacation

BONN, Germany, Nov. 27 (AP)—Former German Gen. Kurt Meyer has had a week's vacation from a British war crimes prison to visit his wife and six children, British sources disclosed here today.

Meyer returned last Thursday to his cell in the Werl war crimes prison, near Hamm in the British zone of Germany.

The sources said he was allowed out on compassionate grounds because he had not seen his family since the war. The prisoners in Werl are confined under conditions laid down in the German penal code, which allows such compassionate releases.

(Douglas How, Canadian Press staff writer, said in a dispatch from Offleben, Germany, that he had seen Meyer at his home Sunday. How quoted Meyer as saying he would return to prison Saturday.)

The swarthy, tough brigade commander of an S.S. armored division was sentenced to death by a Canadian military court in 1945 for responsibility for the shooting of 18 Canadian prisoners captured at Caen, Normandy.

The sentence was commuted to life and Meyer was taken to Canada, in 1946 where he was imprisoned in a federal penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B. He was returned to Germany a month ago to serve the remainder of his sentence.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has demanded a review of the death sentence, later commuted to life imprisonment, imposed on German General Kurt Meyer for the murder of Canadian prisoners of war.

"Either Kurt Meyer is guilty or he is not," Mr. Drew told the Commons yesterday.

"If he is guilty, he should receive the punishment that goes with guilt of that kind. If he is not guilty, he should be freed."

Mr. Drew protested that there should be no "easy" punishment for a man responsible for the death of Canadian troops.

SPARE ROOM IN THE VICARAGE

Love Blooms Amidst Catastrophe

ROME, Nov. 27 (AP)—There was a spare room in the parish vicarage of the flooded town of Loreo in the Po River delta. That's why Gabriele Marangoni, 24, and his girl, Solidea Benedetti, got married when they did.

Their story of life in the floods was told today in a Rome newspaper:

The young people were "almost engaged" when the floods came. Both stayed behind so older members of their families could be saved.

With no place to go, Gabriele and Solidea appealed to the parish priest.

Yes, he said, he had a spare room in the vicarage, but it wouldn't be right to let an unmarried couple sleep together in it.

Gabriele and Solidea looked at each other, then turned to the priest and said: "We'll get married."

The couple, the mayor, the chief of police and the priest poled over to the church in a barge.

They stood in ankle-deep water while the priest married them.

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 27 (AP)—Carcasses of drowned cattle and horses burned on smoking pyres today as authorities worked to avert a threatened outbreak of disease in the flooded Po River delta.

Workmen towed the dead beasts to fires on high ground in the Polesine and Rovigo areas. Yesterday four cases of scarlet fever were reported there.

Officials feared epidemics might break out as the result of damaged sewer systems and the thousands of animals drowned in the vast flood area.

CANADIAN AID FOR ITALY

OTTAWA, Nov. 27 (BUP).—Canada will send relief aid to victims of the Po River flood in Italy when facts of the situation are more clear, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent indicated yesterday.

"As soon as more details are available as to what is urgently needed, we will be in a better position to determine what could or should be done," he said in the Commons.
